

CITE STEWART IN SENATE

Supreme Court Upholds Primary Law

JUDGES DIVIDE, 4 TO 3, ELECTION ON APRIL TENTH

Fisher Writ Delays Emmerson.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Brighton, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—By a vote of 4 to 3 the Illinois Supreme court today sustained the constitutionality of the present primary law, the statute of 1927.

This means that on April 10 the political parties will go to the polls and there nominate their candidates for state, county and other offices, express their preferences between presidential candidates whose names are placed on the ballot, and select new sets of party committees.

Some members still stand in the path of this solution of the problem which has occupied the attention of a special session of the legislature. There are two sides to the issue. On the one side it is predicted that the law will be upheld, leaving the way clear for the program provided by the law.

Assets of the nomination, chiefly those of legislative candidates, are in the mail directed to Secretary of State Emerson, who has announced he will write them tomorrow, but will not go through the election known as filing them until one of those dates, an injunction issued by Judge Harry M. Fisher, is dissolved.

It is said, however, that Attorney General Charleton, who instituted the proceedings, that terminated in victory for him today, plans to go before the Supreme court next week and ask the dissolution of that injunction.

Still Another Case Pending.

The other Cook county order is a mandamus issued by Judge Michael Peiberg in the Ferguson case requiring that petition of legislative candidates be handed according to the district lines of 1921. But it is expected the Supreme court will hand down its ruling in that case soon after it opens its regular February term next Tuesday.

Therefore it is believed that both the Republicans and the Democrats of the state will now jump into the mass of work delayed because of the previous uncertainty whether the primaries would be held in April or in September.

The bill provides that the present committee shall have as many votes as were cast by his party in the election on the day of his election and that he shall continue to hold that voting power despite any changes made in precinct lines. In other words he would represent a specified number of members of the party and not a geographical division.

Views of the Court.

The Supreme court held there was no inequality here, saying in part: "There is nothing in the primary law requiring the doing of an act by a candidate in which or concerning which each party made voting unit should be represented as a separate unit."

Another point of attack on the statute was that the title contained two verbs, because it provides for creating party machinery and for making nominations.

"The constitution requires," the court said on this point, "that the subject of the act be expressed in the title and that the title contain the verb."

"It seems clear that the organization of political parties is a necessary part of the scheme to accomplish the election of candidates and is so closely allied with it as to be germane to the central purpose expressed in the title."

"The statute is germane, one to the other, and the title expresses but one act. The act is not, therefore, to be objected to."

Political District Committees.

Of political importance is the fact that the court approved what in effect is the abolition of existing state, county and senatorial district committees, the latter having the power to nominate the number of candidates to be nominated for the state house of representatives in its senatorial district.

This is of particular interest to members of the legislature who have held their seats as a result of this limitation on the number of candidates to be nominated for the state house of representatives in its senatorial district.

RECLUSE IS SLAIN FIGHTING COPS AT BARRICADE FLAT

Frank Canastota, 40 years old, was shot to death in his flat at 1247 Taylor street last night after he had battled for nearly an hour with squads of policemen who had striven to dislodge him with tear bombs and bullets. A large crowd looked on at the siege. Apparently Canastota was demented. He was blind, literally and figuratively. He was a man of 40 years, with a mustache and a few strands of gray hair. HOME OF MAYOR IN YOUNGSTOWN SUBURB BOMBED

Youngstown, O., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The residence of Mayor T. Roy Gordon of Campbell, a suburb of Youngstown, was bombed early today in what police termed an attempt to assassinate him. The mayor was slightly injured by flying glass. The explosion rocked houses in the neighborhood and broke a window half a mile away.

Schweppe Makes Fortress of His Lake Forest Home

Charles H. Schweppe, Lake Forest millionaire, who stationed guards at his home last spring after he had been informed there was a plot to kidnap his children, John and Joan Schweppe, has converted his estate into a semblance of a fortress. A high iron fence, topped with spikes, has just been completed. If burglars or kidnapers in future pass this barrier they will be met by several ferocious dogs who patrol the area inside.

Love Comes and Goes for Blind Bride

It was the voice of Raymond Mellon, son and alluring, that won the heart of Allen Sears, 22 South Leavitt street.

They met in a real estate office where Miss Sears was employed. She was blind, literally and figuratively. Besides, it was a sunny day in early October, a day built for romance. "I like you," said Mellon. "I have dreamed of a girl like you."

Miss Sears blushed. Mellon went away. He came again a day or two later and talked to her, always in soothing tones. And the blind girl believed that he was like his voice.

Wants to Marry Her

Then he called at her home. He loved her, he said, and wanted to marry her.

"I can make you happy," he asserted. "I am a nephew of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. You can have the house in California and the one I own on the north side. There will be automobiles, horses, servants. Life will be a beautiful dream."

Miss Sears believed. That golden voice convinced her. They went, on Oct. 5, to a justice of the peace and were married. Then Mellon handed her a check for $500.

"Cash that and buy yourself some new clothes," he said. "It's my wedding gift."

Arrested in Bank

She stopped at the bank as he told her and presented the check. A teller called a policeman and she was arrested. There was no account there for Raymond Mellon. And Mellon, watching outside, saw that she was in the hands of a policeman. He left. For months the blind bride had been searching for him. She asked the police to help, just because she wanted him back. She could not believe that she had been deceived.

Friends have helped her. One of them found a clew a few days ago. She told Mrs. Mellon that her husband had been seen in an apartment on North Hermitage avenue. She added that a woman had rented the apartment. So the bride called there. A woman's voice answered the telephone. She was asked to bring Raymond to the transmitter.

Again the Soft Voice.

"Hello," said a male voice.

"Raymond, this is Allen Sears."

"You've got the wrong number."

There was a bang of the receiver.

But it was the golden voice of Raymond Mellon. It was the last straw, and yesterday the blind girl told the story in a bill for an annulment of her marriage, filed in the Circuit court.

BOMB WRECKS CAFE; ALL WEST SIDE IS ROCKED

Placed by young man in dark clothes who walked calmly back to his Ford coupe to drive away, a powerful dynamite bomb was exploded in the entrance of the restaurant of Sam Kessler at 1412 Blue Island avenue early this morning. More than fifty people were in the building when the three upper floors of the building were wrecked and windows were shattered for more than a block in every direction. The explosion was heard even in the loop. Sam Kessler, his wife, Ida, and two of their children, asleep in rear rooms on the first floor, were shaken but unhurt.

Police worked on two theories in seeking a motive. One was bootlegging rivalry, as a bar was found in the restaurant. The other was revenge against Charles Kessler, 22 years old, a police officer, who was shot and killed a Negro during a fight in the restaurant. Last December he was found guilty of manslaughter, but a writ of superadeas was granted and he is now out on bonds. Lieut. Patrick Bonner of the Maxwell street station said the Negroes of the neighborhood have been indignant because Kessler is not in jail.

A small bomb caused damage estimated at $200 when it exploded in the front doorway of Harry's shoe store, 320 West Madison street, early this morning. Albert Hook, 1810 North Linden avenue, manager of the store, told Detective Sgt. Louis Klatsko that several demands that he join the retail clerks' union had been made.

Interrogatories. Following the reading of the report Senator Walsh offered the following resolution:

"Whereas, it appears from a report of the committee on public lands and surveys that a witness, Robert W. Stewart, called before said committee making an inquiry as directed by senate resolution 101, declined to answer certain questions relative and pertinent to the matter then under inquiry.

"Resolved, That the president of the senate issue his warrant commanding the sergeant-at-arms or his deputy to take into custody the body of said Robert W. Stewart wherever found, and to bring said Robert W. Stewart before the bar of the senate, and there, or elsewhere as it may direct, to answer such questions pertinent to the matter under inquiry as the senate, through its said committee, or the president of the senate may provide, and to keep said Robert W. Stewart in custody to await further order of the senate.

Dawes Signs Warrant.

The reading of the report and the resolution had taken less than ten minutes and the resolution was adopted without debate and without objection. The warrant had been prepared and was signed at once by Vice President Dawes.

Sergeant-at-Arms Barry. Accompanied by his deputy, John J. McGrath, reached the White House at 12:30 o'clock and disappeared within the suite of the Standard Oil office. Ten minutes later Mr. Barry emerged and reported that the warrant had been served.

"Col. Stewart was very pleasant and affable," Mr. Barry said. "He said he was ready to do anything I wanted. I told him that I would like to appear before the senate at noon tomorrow. He said he would, unless in the meantime he should decide to obtain a writ of habeas corpus."

Committee Session Stormy.

It was at a stormy session of the investigating committee in the forenoon that the foundation was laid for the citation of Col. Stewart to the bar of the senate. He was given another opportunity by Chairman Nye (Rep., N. D.) to answer the interrogatories.

"The senate," Senator Nye said, "expects you to interrogate you with respect to whether you know anything of the transaction in Liberty loan bonds. With that purpose in mind, I am going to repeat my question yesterday. 'Do you know of any one who received any of these Liberty bonds in which the Continental Trading company is represented to have dealt?'"

"Senator," Col. Stewart responded, "again, with the greatest reluctance and with great respect for the committee, for the reasons which I have already given in the course of my testimony and for other reasons which may appear later, I will have to respectfully decline to answer that question."

Had no Bond Talk With O'Neil.

"Very well," said Senator Nye, "I shall also repeat the question of yesterday as to whether or not you had any conversation with H. P. Sinclair with regard to the transaction in Liberty loan bonds or with regard to the Continental Trading company's transactions."

"For the same reasons, I shall have to decline to answer," was the reply. "I have no conversation with H. P. Sinclair with regard to any of these transactions in the Continental Trading company's Liberty loan bonds."

"Not to the best of my remembrance," asserted the witness.

"You understand that the committee expects answers to these various questions that you have declined to answer?" asked Senator Nye.

"Yes," responded Col. Stewart, "I am just as regretful as can be, senator, but in view of the feelings in my mind and in my heart I just can't come out and tell. I have full respect for you gentlemen and I think you have treated me fairly. I think you have treated me with rare consideration and I am very sorry."

"Well, colonel," concluded Senator Nye, "of course you can see how there is a reason for this committee to feel that it is not at all unfair on its part to assume that you or your associates, or all of you combined, knew from the outset what the purpose of this Continental Trading company was even prior to the date of its organization. I want you to know what the conclusion of the committee must necessarily be at this time."

Guaranteed Continental Contract.

Col. Stewart attended the meeting with Sinclair and other oil men in New York at which he purchased part of the oil disposed of by the Sinclair Trading company and, together with Sinclair, guaranteed the performance of contract by the Continental. The Standard Oil official, however, had stated he knew nothing about the affairs of the Continental but trusted its officers.

The Continental Trading company, Ltd., an alleged "fake" Canadian corporation, was organized, supposedly at the inspiration of Harry F. Sinclair, to buy $1,131,131 barrels of crude oil from the Humphreys-Mexia company, a Texas producer. Soon after receiving the oil on the same day to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company at a net profit of 35 cents a barrel, its books were destroyed and the company was dissolved.

The actual organizers of the company were Harry M. Blackmer, chairman of the Midwest Refining company, which subsequently became a Standard of Indiana subsidiary, James E. O'Neill, president of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and H. S. Oiler, a Toronto, Ont., lawyer who acted as nominal president of the concern.

Part of Profits Traced to Fall.

The purchase and resale contracts had been only partially fulfilled when the Continental disposed of its purchase contract with a potential profit of $1,000,000 to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Prairie company for $400,000.

Part of the Continental company's profit—$118,000 in Liberty bonds—was passed to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, by Harry F. Sinclair shortly after Fall leased the heavy Tappan Dome oil reserve to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company. The senate committee is seeking to find out what became of the balance of the $1,000,000 which is said to have accrued to the Continental.

When the Fall-Dobson-Sinclair oil scandals broke four years ago Blackmer and O'Neill fled to France, where they have since hidden. They have refused to return to the United States to testify, although the government has moved, under the Walsh act passed for the express purpose of compelling him to return, to confiscate $100,000 of Blackmer's property.

Oiler claimed his right as a Canadian citizen to refuse to testify or make any depositions concerning the Continental deal. Recently, however, Canadian courts ruled that he could be compelled to give testimony in the form of depositions and the dispatch

TO MAP BLUE RIVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 3.—The state geographical society today asked the council of people's commissars for 175,000 rubles ($87,500) for Prof. Peter Kuznetsov, who believes he has discovered the headwaters of the Blue river in 1925, to take an expedition to Tibet to search for the source of the Yangtze Kiang, or Blue river.

The expedition will leave Moscow next autumn via the Trans-Siberian railway as far as Verkhne Udenak, thence by automobiles to Urgan, Mongolia, then by camel to Sharn holousna, thence to the great Chinese road, arriving at Tsaidam in the spring of 1926. During the summer they will continue toward the Blue river, exploring toward the headwaters the entire year, and starting back in the autumn of 1926.

of a commission to Toronto to question him when he can be found was recently authorized by the senate.

The committee's session this morning was thrown into an uproar when Col. Stewart, flushed with anger at not being permitted to have it stricken from the record, had perjured himself, threatened to leave the room unless Senator Bronson Cutting (Rep., N. M.) withdrew the offensive remark.

Walsh and Nye protested to Senator Cutting that the suggestion of perjury was unwarranted and the latter asked to have it stricken from the record.

Senator Cutting, recently appointed to succeed the late Senator A. A. Jones, undertook to chide the colonel for poor business judgment in purchasing crude oil at $1.75 a barrel from the Continental company when he knew that the Continental had paid only $1.50 for the same oil a few minutes before.

"The thing is knowing your business ability," began Senator Cutting, "and the offense remark was an insult to me, we may assume that you are an imbecile—that is possible."

Hints at Perjury.

"O, absolutely," agreed the colonel with an ominous smile.

"And, of course," the young senator went on, "there is another possible assumption—a logical assumption—that you are committing perjury and—"

"What?" shouted Col. Stewart, leaping up from his chair and clenching his fists. "You say there is a—"

"A possible assumption," Senator Cutting added.

"I say there is no possible assumption," thundered the former Rider, pounding the table before him, "and I say that you have no right to make such a statement and I don't intend to be so insulted. I say that I shall leave the room instantly if it goes on."

"That remark was quite uncalled for and it should be withdrawn," declared Senator Walsh.

"Certainly it should be withdrawn," said Senator Nye.

"I move to withdraw it," said Senator Cutting, and turning to Col. Stewart, who still stood clenching and unclenching his fists, he went on "I did not mean to insult you."

"We are anxious," he continued, "to assume that you are telling the truth. But we are also anxious to assume that you were in full possession of your faculties when you acted as you did at that meeting. Now don't you think you ought to help us?"

Recovering his usual poise immediately, Col. Stewart insisted that he had no further explanation to make of the deal which, he asserted, had netted huge profits to both the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Standard Oil company of Indiana in spite of the committee's opinion that it represented either poor business judgment or knavery.

Instead of calling Col. Stewart to the stand at once when the hearing was resumed this morning, Senator Walsh undertook by other witnesses to impeach the colonel's testimony yesterday that he had been told in the New York conference that the Standard Oil company could have no part of the Humphreys oil unless it paid $1.75 a barrel.

Heard No Price Ultimatum.

Charles S. Thomas, former United States senator from Colorado, who drafted the Continental contract with Humphreys; Eeman Dawes, president of the Pure Oil company, a brother of Vice President Dawes and one of those present at the conference, and A. E. Humphreys Jr., all declared today they heard no such ultimatum served on the Standard Oil man while they were present.

Col. Stewart, when he was called, immediately asserted that he had sought to make it plain in his testimony that the ultimatum so called had been put to him by Blackmer in a private conversation in a corner of the conference room and admitted that it was probably true that none of the other conferees had heard it.

"Col. Stewart," said Senator Walsh, "yesterday you said, in effect, 'I have never handled any of these bonds, never given any of them to any political party or to any officials of the United States or of any state or territory. I have it in my power to go.' What induced you to specify 'political party'?"

Clears Up Statement.

"Why, senator," responded the oil man, "I had heard from some sources or other, probably the newspapers, that there was some question of that kind. I wanted to make it clear to you gentlemen, in view of the great hesitancy I have to appear reluctant to answer these questions, that you would understand that I neither gave nor caused to be given to anybody nor do I know of any bonds of any character being given to representatives of a political party or to any public officer of the United States or of any state or territory or municipality."

"I wanted to make that clear to you and that is my purpose, senator," "Yes," said Senator Walsh, "but what do you know about their disposition? If you know anything, you decline to tell?"

"That is the position I take very reluctantly, senator," responded the witness.

"Did you have any interest in the Continental Trading company in any way?" asked Senator Walsh.

"None whatever," answered Col. Stewart.

"Do you know who the parties were who did have an interest in it?" asked the senator.

"I do not," was the reply. "I know that Mr. Oiler purported to act as president of it."

Not Consulted About Bonds.

"Were you consulted in any wise, either directly or indirectly, concerning any purchase of bonds by the Continental Trading company?" the senator asked next.

"No, sir," was the answer.

"Did you know anything about the purchase of the bonds?" was the next question.

"With great deference, senator," answered Col. Stewart, "I again reiterate what I said before: that I never personally profited one dollar by this deal and, with all respect to your committee, I shall refuse to answer."

"Were you ever consulted about the purchase of the bonds?" persisted Senator Walsh.

"No, sir," answered the witness, after a moment's hesitation.

"Ah, why did you hesitate about that?" Senator Walsh shot out as he leaned across the table.

"That's my business, senator, why hesitate," snapped Col. Stewart, "and it's my business why I wait here a little to consider what my answer should be and with all respect you I do not think that that is a proper question from you or for this committee."

Senator Walsh signified that he had concluded his examination of the colonel, and as Senator Bratton was about to question him Col. Stewart interrupted to thank Senator Walsh for his "forbearance" and "very kindly treatment."

Memory of Old Times.

"I have a memory of old times," said Senator Walsh, with a reminiscence smile.

"They were the old times out in South Dakota where we practiced law in the starvation days," said Col. Stewart, feelingly, "and the memory of those days out there is very dear to me yet."

Senator Bratton insisted on knowing why the colonel had not demanded an explanation of the 25 cents a barrel premium from Humphreys, in view of the fact that Stewart had promised to pay top price for the oil months before the Continental company was organized.

"Now you want to know why I didn't do something," said Col. Stewart.

"Is the senate of the United States asking me why I don't do certain things?"

"I am asking you why you failed to do that," said Senator Bratton.

"Maybe I made a mistake," answered the oil man. "Maybe you should have been chairman of the Standard Oil company in making that deal. I figure you cannot be right all the time, but if you are right half the time, a man has got a pretty good average. It may be that I made a mistake there."

"Maybe we could have gotten that for 25 cents a barrel less, but my stockholders certainly cannot complain if the contracts have been fairly profitable to them and if the situation did develop along the lines so that the board of directors of the company got this crude and we were able to run our refineries."

Upholds Blackmer's Actions.

Col. Stewart refused to agree with Senator Kendrick (Dem., Wyo.) that Blackmer had violated rules of good conscience, honor, and business ethics when he apparently played both ends against the middle in the dealings between Stewart and Humphreys and forced the colonel to pay $1.75 a barrel to Blackmer's Continental company.

The witness asserted that Blackmer, as president of the Midwest Refining company, in which the Standard had not yet acquired a dominating interest, was free to act as a broker in the deal if he chose and collect any commission he could. He admitted that he knew when he signed the purchase contract that some one was getting 25 cents a barrel as a premium or commission.

Mr. Dawes, recalled to the stand by Senator Walsh, described the fight between the Pure Oil company, the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and other leading oil companies to purchase the Humphreys-Mexia production.

Mr. Dawes asserted emphatically that he knew nothing of the Continental company before it was named as the purchaser of the bonds, and that he knew "absolutely nothing" about its investments in Liberty bonds and "nothing whatever" about the distribution of the bonds.

Test Stewart's Word on Price.

Edward J. Bullock of Oak Park, Ill., a director of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, quizzed by Senator Walsh, declared that he voted to approve the purchase of the oil from the Continental company at $1.75 a barrel, and the strength of Col. Stewart's word that the price was the best that could be secured.

He admitted he thought it looked as though "someone had put some sharp art's work" that the price was the best that could be secured.

ASKS CELL FOR SINCLAIR

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Demanding prison sentences for Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns, W. Sherman Burns, and Henry Mason Day for their part in the surveillance of the Fall-Sinclair oil trial, the government today opened its opposition to the defense motion to dismiss the contempt charges standing against them.

The prosecution at the same time indicated it would not oppose dismissal of similar charges against Edward J. Clark, Chicago oil operator, and C. L. Vetsch, Burns' Baltimore manager. The court recessed until Monday.

Chicago Banker Suffers Heart Attack at Palm Beach

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 3.—(AP)—J. T. Straus, Chicago and New York banker, was stricken with a heart attack here today and for several hours his condition was said to be critical, but tonight physicians said his condition was "good." Mr. Straus, who is 51 years old, is president of the Franklin Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, and a vice president of the S. W. Straus & Co., incorporated, of New York.

AUTO ACCIDENTS CLAIM LIVES OF FIVE LITTLE BOYS

Deaths of five small boys and a mob attack on a motorist marked yesterday's automobile accidents.

Charles Muran, 38 years old, a business agent of the Packing Traders' and Chauffeurs' union, was surrounded by a crowd of men and women and beaten after his automobile had knocked down Mrs. Theresa Salts, 35 years old, 941 Charles street, at 79th street and Ashland avenue. He was rescued from the crowd by Policeman Leo Collett, who has worn a star for only four days.

The police were told that Muran drove through a red traffic light. His car came off a parked vehicle and plunged onto the sidewalk, striking Mrs. Salts. Her injuries were not serious.

Toll Increased to 33.

The deaths of the children raised the motor toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 33.

Paul Sachauski, 4 years old, 4597 North Central Park avenue, died in a hit and run motorist, died of a fractured skull. He was run down by a car returning from a nearby store with a bag of candy.

Harvey Schallner, 4 years old, 4597 North Central Park avenue, died in his mother's arms shortly after he was struck by an automobile at Montrose and Central Park avenue. The driver, Neil Muller, 4319 North Lawndale avenue, took the boy to a hospital in a vain effort to save his life.

Two Boys of 6 Killed.

Morris Korman, 6 years old, was killed in front of his home, 1237 South Kedzie avenue, by a car driven by Albert Feinerman, 17 years old. Feinerman said he was a student residing at 916 West 14th street.

Elmer Hanson, 6 years old, 4519 Parker avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile at Fullerton and Kostner avenues. Edward Hayes, 25, of 1748 North Mayfield avenue, driver of the car, took the child to the Keystone hospital, where he died. Hayes was held for the inquest.

Oliver Frederick, 5 years old, colored, 4841 South Michigan boulevard, died at Wilson hospital last night of injuries suffered on Jan. 31 when he was knocked down by an automobile at Michigan boulevard and 49th street. George Lowery, 35, of 5513 Winthrop avenue, driver of the car, was notified to appear at the inquest today.

OSTEOPATH, EX-COP BOOKED ON CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED BOMBING

Charles F. Bongiorno, osteopath with offices at 122 South Michigan avenue, and James F. McCahill, former policeman, were charged yesterday with attempting to maliciously destroy by a bomb the home of W. J. Byrne, Beverly Hills manufacturer, and former building contractor. They were arraigned before Judge John H. Lyle and at the request of the police the case was continued until Feb. 18.

McCahill in court denied any connection with the affair, but Bongiorno repeated to the judge the statement he made to Assistant State's Attorney Walter G. Walker in which he blamed McCahill. He said McCahill told him he was attempting to coerce Byrne into paying some money.

It was intimated by Prosecutor Walker yesterday that the attempt to collect money was a "blackmail scheme" rather than concerning a debt over a building transaction. McCahill may be involved when the inquiry is completed, it was said.

BANDITS ROB TWO ON TRAIN; LEAP OFF; FLEE

Shortly after a B. & O. passenger train bound for Washington left the Grand Central station at 10:45 o'clock last night two armed Negroes entered the dining car and compelled the steward, Milton Miller, to surrender $24. Then they slugged George Buchanan, a waiter, and took $50 from him.

Miller ran through the train until he found Conductor Charles Lightner and the latter ordered that the train slow down at 18th street so he could send a message to have police waiting for the robbers at 63d street. The bandits took advantage of the opportunity and leaped off at this point. Buchanan said that one of the bandits formerly was employed as a cook on the dining car.

U. S. OPENS WAR TO RID CHICAGO OF RACKETEERS

Will Make a Survey of Trade Situations.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The United States government, through the department of justice, entered the field against the Chicago racketeers, described recently by T. E. Donohue, head of the Employers' association, as the best organized and boldest criminals in the country.

An investigation of the local trade situation having interstate relations and employing racketeers to enforce demands has been approved by the department, it was announced yesterday by United States District Attorney George R. Q. Johnson.

More than this, the investigation and prosecutions will be handled in Chicago by Mr. Johnson and a special assistant to be sent on from Washington. This is a distinct innovation for the department, as in the past, with the exception of New York City, all such work has been directed from Washington by Col. William J. Donovan, head of the criminal branch. Special investigators will also be sent here, perhaps as here now.

Explains Situation in Capital.
Mr. Johnson went to Washington recently and presented to Col. Donovan and Attorney General Sargent what he called an unparalleled situation in certain trades touching food and other necessities for Chicago homes. He had some difficulty in explaining the exact meaning of racketeering to the Washington authorities.

It may be explained most clearly, perhaps, by the charges presented in the indictment returned by the federal grand jury last November against the Chicago Association of Candy Jobbers. Here, it is charged, was an effort to fix uniform prices in the sale of such products in Chicago, the association acting as distributors for the manufacturers, many of them in other states.

Here is where the federal government was permitted to step in. It became a matter of interstate commerce and conspiracy to restrain trade, under the charges. Now comes the racketeers. These business men, the indictment states, who did not maintain prices or who refused to boycott where ordered, were assaulted, beaten and stabbed. Jobbers were threatened with firearms and with black powder bombs and stench bombs. The leaders of the alleged conspiracy, in other words, employed the racketeers. This case is to come to trial on March 6.

Touches Thirteen Trades.
There are many instances of racketeering in Chicago which the federal government cannot touch because no interstate commerce is involved. But there are said to be at least thirteen trades which are touched with this evil open to federal action.

Among these are said to be the machinery moving contractors, paper companies, cleaners and dyers, grocery and delicatessen stores, drug stores, milk dealers, fish and poultry dealers, butchers, bakers and the wine and shade and drapery business. The effect of it all hits the consumers all ways in higher prices.

In entering the war against racketeers by the side of the local officials Mr. Johnson is not carrying the idea that this is the crime center of the world. Far from it.

Prize for Chicago.
"I think the best people of the world are in Chicago," he said. "I think that we are more frank about our crimes than other cities, and doubt whether we have any greater amount of crime, generally, than such a city as Philadelphia, for instance. But we pay it up, talk about it; therefore our reputation."

Mr. Johnson's assistant in the new Chicago work is expected to be Mary O. Connor, a special assistant to the attorney general, who prepared the indictment in the candy jobbers' case and who is familiar with many angles of the Chicago situation.

WRIGHT'S ORIGINAL BIPLANE IS SHIPPED TO BRITISH MUSEUM

Dayton, O., Feb. 3.—(P)—The original Wright biplane, in which the first successful flight was made at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903, has been shipped to the British National museum at London, where it will be placed on exhibition for an indefinite period.

The plane left the Orville Wright laboratory here secretly Wednesday, it became known today. Mr. Wright refused to discuss the matter further than to confirm shipment of the plane. The craft will remain in England for at least a year, the contract for its housing in the museum originally being written so that it would remain abroad for six years.

Recently a movement was started here, with the completion of Wright field, the engineering division of the navy, to have the original Wright plane housed in a memorial building to be erected on the field in tribute to the achievements of the Wright brothers.

LEAGUE'S NIGHT WATCHMAN NIPS WAR IN BALKANS

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 3.—(AP)—War against war advanced another step tonight when the league of nations decided never to close. Henceforth secretaries will be on duty throughout the night and on Sundays, prepared to receive radio messages and telegrams, and to start in motion instantly the league's peace machinery when any threat of war develops, or any country urgently appeals for intervention because of fear of an outbreak of hostilities.

Like Paul Revere, they will give the alarm, and will adopt measures for the immediate convocation of the league council.

The plan is the outcome of Bulgaria's appeal in the Greco-Bulgarian crisis two years ago. This arrived at night, when the secretariat was closed. The council was able to be convoked without delay—and thus prevented hostilities—because the night watchman took the initiative and opened the urgent Bulgarian message appealing to the league.

The secretaries on night service will have special quarters and will be armed with a special volume of instructions outlining the nature of their activities, the first of which will be summoning the secretary general. Secretaries have been invited to volunteer for night service. They will receive extra compensation.

TWO WIVES FIGHT RAJAH'S WEDDING TO YANKEE GIRL

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Feb. 3.—With the arrival here of two Brahmin priests, presumably for the purpose of carrying out the purification ceremony preliminary to the marriage of the former maharajah of Indore to Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., it is pointed out that once the ceremony has taken place it will be impossible for the British viceroy of India to interfere further in the proposed marriage.

Even if the junior maharajah (the former maharajah's first wife should interfere, she has no right beyond claiming a maintenance from the allowance of the former maharajah. Meanwhile the people of Indore are recalling the occasion of the prince's first marriage to Indrabai in the face of opposition from his prime minister, Sir Narayan Chandavarkar, former acting chief justice of the Bombay high court, and others.

Sir Narayan, who is a staunch reformer, considered it beneath his dignity to serve under such a ruler and resigned his position. Indrabai, however, succeeded in her marriage ambition, and it is for that reason that few of the natives resent her present relocation to "second place."

May Cut Income Seriously.
Meanwhile some fear is expressed that the former maharajah's proposed marriage may result in a portion of his allowance of about $400,000 a year being accorded to the senior and junior maharanis, leaving him barely enough to live in his accustomed luxury.

It is declared the viceroy may order the extremely valuable jewels and costly ornaments valued at more than $400,000 turned over to the Indore state treasury, as they form a part of the great legacy of heirlooms handed down from the time of the famous Queen Ahalyabai.

Natives Fear Third Marriage.
Since the proposed marriage would represent the third wedding of the ex-maharajah, the natives are predicting that it would necessarily be unfortunate, and the only way of offsetting lurking evil would be for the maharajah first to go through the "ritual ceremony." This consists of marriage to a tree (rit plant) before taking on the responsibilities of one more soulmate in life.

Meanwhile those Hindus who have faith in the law of Karma are of the belief that the second maharani, who is now undergoing fasting and penance, as a protest to the proposed marriage, is merely reaping the fruits of her own Karma in the past. She herself caused the first bride of the ex-maharajah similar discomfort, that lady being obliged to live in seclusion in a state bordering on slavery, as well as being cruelly treated.

POLICE OF PARIS START DRIVE TO CURB GIGOLOS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Parisian police declared war today on gigolos—dancing men who infect every resort in Paris from night clubs to a la mode to the cheapest bars.

Police statistics show that more than 3,000 of these gentry, mostly Spanish, Argentine and Italian, are making a good living from middle aged women. Acting on a complaint by Fernand Laurent, city councilman from the wealthy Passy district, the police set out to subject these lads to control that they never have known before.

M. Laurent suggests that the "dancing men" be forced to register with the police as such. More than three-quarters of the robbery of wealthy American women in Paris are traced to gigolos. Sleek, well dressed and talented dancers, they are available at tea dances and fashionable hotels and night clubs. For 50 francs ($2) they will lead even an over developed woman of 40 through one tango, but their services for an entire evening command a fancy sum.

MANAGER LOSES HIS $26,000 SUIT AGAINST RUFFO

New York, Feb. 3.—(Special.)—Titta Ruffo, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera company, can sing in "The Barber of Seville" unworried by the suit in which Fortune Gallo, impresario of the San Carlo Grand Opera company, sought to recover from the singer $26,000 as a result of a poor spring season of opera in Havana in 1922.

Justice Mitchell of the Supreme court, who late yesterday dismissed two of the three causes of action in the suit, today dismissed the third and last, which involved only $4,300 paid to Ruffo and Mme. d'Arle for extra performances.

Counsel for Gallo had contended from the outset that he should be reimbursed for the $24,000 he actually paid Ruffo at the rate of $4,000 a performance, and also for the money he had to spend taking along Mme. d'Arle, soprano, for at least three performances at $300 each, because Ruffo had not drawn into the Theater Nacional nearly as much as the artist said his reputation in Havana was worth.

SUPREME COURT O. K.'S ILLINOIS PRIMARY LAW

validation aroused comparatively little comment since there are no rival committees under the present circumstances, but in Cook county it was of great interest because it now gives full legal standing to the 1916 committee, something it has lacked for years.

But this form of organization control now is due for a big change since the 1927 law provides for the election of precinct committees throughout Cook county as well as downstate. This field of contest is counted upon to double the normal heat of the battle of April 10, at least so far as the Republicans are concerned.

Today's opinion, however, takes the position that it does not validate the existing committee. It contends that the law merely designates certain persons who have been acting as committees who are to continue to act in that capacity until an election is held for precinct and other committees.

Seniors Victory for Small.

As already indicated the decision is considered a political victory for Gov. Small, who was extremely anxious for a spring primary. It also was considered a victory for Attorney General Carlstrom in a political as well as a legal way, since he favored an early vote.

His friends say it will benefit him in the public mind because it was presentation of the subject to the Supreme court and not Gov. Small's taking it to the legislature which preserved the presidential preference primary and the popular election of delegates.

Credit for the legal battle is given to Attorney General Carlstrom's staff, chiefly to Montgomery Swinney, his first assistant, and also to E. C. Pritchard and S. S. Duhamel, assistants who helped prepare the case.

Court Renders Decision.

At the appointed hour, 9 a. m. to-day, all of the seven, except Justice William E. Farmer of Vandalla, whose health is not the best, walked into the conference room adjoining their courtroom.

At 12:30 a recess until 2:30 was announced, but at the former hour, it was disclosed later, the necessary majority of four had agreed on the validity of the statute under attack.

During the lunch hour stenographers were busy and within a few minutes of the resumption of the conference it became known that the opinion would be sent to the office of Clerk Charles W. Vall at once.

It came down at 3 o'clock, and the first scrutiny showed that it had been signed by Chief Justice Heald, Justice Warren M. Duncan of Vandalla, Justice Clyde E. Stone of Peoria, and Justice Frederick R. De Young of Chicago.

Stone Writes Opinion.

The writing was done by Justice Stone, and copies had been in the hands of all members of the court for several days.

On the last page of the long type-written document was an inked notation under the last names of the three dissenting judges. They were Justice Farmer, who had sent in his vote on the case; Justice Floyd E. Thompson of Rock Island, and Justice Frank K. Dunn of Charleston.

Detailed examination showed that each one of the points on which Judge Fisher had found the law had been emphatically negated on by the high court. Possibly the most important, and one of particular moment in Chicago, concerned the fact that there now is no provision for registration in Chicago before April 10.

Judge Fisher held that this was a vital defect, but today's decision included a pronouncement that many well confusion in Chicago on primary day. It was that if there is no means of registration provided the qualification that a voter must be registered cannot be enforced.

Part of Job Still Pending.

Just what will happen to the extraordinary session of the legislature, called by Gov. Small chiefly to take up new primary legislation, is uncertain tonight. In addition to the registration act for Chicago, it has before it a number of important revenue and tax rate bills that it is felt should have immediate attention. Among them are bills to restore exemption of small communities from the doubled bonding power intended only for Chicago, but extended to downstate by a December decision of the state Supreme court. There also is the increased tax rate for the south park board which fell by the wayside as a result of the same decision.

Further there is the bill to authorize women to act as judges and clerks of election, but whether such a new law is needed may be determined at this time.

term of the Supreme court if it passes on the so-called Jarecki contempt cases.

CARLSTROM IS PLEASED.

Attorney General Carlstrom, campaigning for the Republican nomination for governor, speaking at McHenry last night, said of the Supreme court decision:

"I congratulate the people on the elimination of chaos and uncertainty which surrounded the primary election situation. My office took every means to prevent to the court a case which would enable it to determine the constitutionality of the act. I had a conference based upon an analysis of the law that the act would be sustained and the primaries held April 10."

"With that in mind, I already have completed an intensive tour covering 45 counties in the state and have a complete itinerary for the rest of the counties and will be ready April 10. I believe the people will be gratified to know the nominations will be made as originally contemplated in April."

PROHIBITIONISTS
CONVENTION HERE

Chicago has been chosen as the place for the national convention of the Prohibition party to be held July 10, after the Republicans and Democrats have picked their national tickets at Kansas City and Houston, Tex. It was announced yesterday.

The call issued by D. Leigh Colvin, Prohibitionist national chairman at New York, provides for 1,537 delegates, of whom 1,000 are to be chosen by the party according to customary methods.

"The other 537," says the call, "shall be composed of those not heretofore affiliated with the Prohibition party, but who after the conventions of one or both of the major parties shall determine to sever their former political affiliations."

The Prohibition party extends a wide invitation to all good citizens who wish to bring about a new alignment and a union of a party unitedly and patriotically devoted to the strengthening and enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Tired people . . .

SOMANY women, so many men, can't last through the day. Even mid-afternoon finds them listless and spent. Hopelessly tired. Work, home—life itself—holds little for them.

What a difference it would mean if they but realized the part constipation plays in ruining health and sapping human energy. Constipation is the beginning of many a pain—that leads in the end to untold diseases. It steals youth. Mocks beauty. Kills ambition. Spreads misery far and wide.

Yet it can be so easily relieved. So surely and safely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve it promptly and pleasantly. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

Why "all-bran" is necessary

To relieve constipation naturally, the system must have plenty of bulk or roughage. ALL-BRAN, because it is 100% bran, furnishes this bulk in generous quantity. Here is what happens: It absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines—exercising them, gently sweeping out poisons and wastes. There is seldom enough bulk to properly do

CHICAGO FEARS RETURN OF EARLY, OFTEN BALLOTING

Lack of Registry Law Offers Peril.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Political chiefs feared the cry last night that Chicago is now left flat on its back without a registration either for the April primaries or the presidential election in November.

Through the megaphones they proclaimed that the middle over direct primaries which was strangled out by the Supreme court decision is followed by another middle which will throw the April and November polls into the chaos of ancient days when anybody voted without hindrance and the slogan in the badlands was "Vote early and often."

Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago and Melvin C. Frost, New Orleans newspaper reporter, in the car, were not injured.

May Bring New Legislation.

In general, the legal talent around Hotel Sherman headquarters maintained that the law is now in such shape that even if a registration were called there still would be no legal barrier against the voting of unregistered voters. There was talk of rushing a test case of some sort to the Supreme court to determine the exact status of registration.

The new complexity arises from a tangle that occurred in the 1927 session of the legislature over the idea of central registration for Chicago.

First the law was amended to take Chicago outside the general requirement of the election commission act regarding registration of voters. After those amendments were passed, however, the lawyers set forth, the legislature declined to pass the central registration bill. Thus Chicago was left without a new law and without the protection of the old one.

Might Mean Open Frauds.

Without registration, the politicians point out, the April primaries and the fall national election would be thrown wide open for fraudulent voting. Chicago has a reputation in that respect, anyhow, under the old system, but without registration they point out, the polls would be a sublimated terror. They pictured a return of the old days, when peripatetic voters moved in a procession from precinct to precinct and when the volume of voting done by a repeater depended only upon how long his legs held out; some even remarked that is the motor age.

The Supreme court declared yesterday that if no means of registration is provided the qualification that a voter must be registered cannot be enforced at the polls.

A bill is pending before the legislature to supply the missing registration. The Republican and Democratic chiefs plan to urge its importance upon the legislature. But extreme doubt is expressed that it will receive the two-thirds vote necessary to pass the bill before the primaries April 10.

Early Filing for Lowden.

Politics being taken out of its long suspension by the Supreme court finding, the politicians were immersed last night in conjectures as to how the decision may affect the political fortunes of some.

Ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden's name

MAYOR THOMPSON SLIGHTLY HURT AS AUTO STRIKES RUT

New Orleans, La., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago was slightly cut about his face today when an automobile in which he was riding with Mayor Arthur J. O'Keefe of New Orleans struck a rut in the road and threw him against the top of the machine.

Antiseptics were applied to the cuts, which were about one inch in length on his nose and on his lips. After being treated Mayor Thompson said the injuries were of no consequence and he and his party continued to the Fair Grounds race track to attend the running of the New Orleans handicap.

Mayor O'Keefe and Lincoln Pratt of Chicago and Melvin C. Frost, New Orleans newspaper reporter, in the car, were not injured.

will be presented for the presidential preference polls as soon as the state house doors open this morning. His managers say he will thus be the first White House candidate to enter the primaries of any state.

On the national end, George E. Brennan and his associates declared the fortunes of Gov. Al Smith of New York would not be affected by the sustaining of the direct primary act. Gov. Smith's name it was indicated may not be filed in the presidential primaries.

Say Smith Gets Delegates.

Some of his friends say there is no need entering his name as the prospect is that the Illinois delegates will be for him, anyhow, and that they need no advisory vote to advise them to be for Smith.

No final decision has been announced on this, and it may be that Gov. Smith's name may be filed after all. If so, the leaders expect he would have no opposition, other Democratic candidates for the presidency entering no present intention of entering Illinois against Smith.

Mr. Brennan and his leaders, after reviewing sentiment expressed in downstate districts, assert that the state convention will be overwhelmingly for Smith and he will get the delegates at large. In the congressional districts regarding registration of voters, and last night the word at headquarters was that the outlook was for a practically solid Smith delegation from Illinois.

Lowden Forces Elated.

Ex-Governor Lowden's camp expressed elation because preferential primaries are to be held. Downstate Gov. Small has indicated he will bring no opposition against the Lowden favorite son candidacy. In Cook county, Mayor Thompson said some time ago he would enter the preferential primaries himself, but his present attitude has not been indicated, beyond a recent remark to the effect that "Lowden is out of it and Hoover seems to have him beat." At that time this was taken to indicate that "Big Bill" would not enter the preferential polls.

Cook county slates on congress, the legislature and the state committee were given out by the Crow-Galpin-Thompson Republican group and the Democratic organization as follows:

HOOVER THRUST INTO OHIO RACE AGAINST WILLIS

'I Am Ready for a Fight,' Senator Declares.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Secretary Herbert C. Hoover was today declared in the Republican presidential primary race by Representative Theodore Burton of Cleveland.

Senator Frank B. Willis accepted the challenge to his candidacy when he announced he was ready for a fight and was endorsed for President this afternoon by the Ohio Republican central committee.

Failure of the Hoover forces to reach an agreement with Senator Willis concerning the Ohio delegates made known when Representative Burton called upon Secretary Hoover to enter the Ohio primaries. Mr. Burton said that while he was willing to support Senator Willis at the start of the convention, he wished to see that at such time as it develops that Willis be free to support Secretary Hoover cannot be nominated.

There were definite indications that Secretary Hoover will consent to the entry of his name in the Ohio primaries, and that he may take the opportunity to make formal announcement of his candidacy. The Ohio primaries come on April 24 and nominating petitions must be filed the latter part of the present month.

"I have labored most earnestly for weeks to secure agreement in the selection of delegates to the national Republican convention," said Representative Burton.

"I have been willing as a matter of state pride and because of my strong attachment for Senator Willis to support him for the presidential nomination in the first instance and even for a longer time in case he should be rejected outside the states as to make his nomination probable."

But it is insisted on his behalf by him and his friends that the delegation shall vote for him through protracted balloting in the hope that there may be a deadlock and the choice will be made in the same manner as that of Mr. Harding in 1920. I do not anticipate there will be such a deadlock this year, although it is evident that a movement is under way having for its object a situation in which a candidate might be selected who has no general support.

"I have made a careful survey of Republican preferences in the state of Ohio and at a result concluded that the dominant sentiment is for Mr. Hoover. If his friends wish that he should seek the support of the Republican voters and Mr. Hoover is willing to respond to that wish, it is my opinion that his name should be entered in the primary contest."

The fact that a state has a candidate of its own should not preclude the people from expressing their choice among the candidates from other states.

No occasion for ill feeling.

"There is no occasion for ill feeling, or anything but a friendly contest. The issue is one of such momentous consequence, not only to the state but the nation, that the choice of the voters should have full and free expression."

Entry of Hoover into the fight in Ohio will mean, it is understood, that the commerce secretary also will contest with Senator Walton [Rep., Ind.]

SLAPS ROBBER

Miss Sophie Reker, school board employee, who routed man who tried to hold her up.

For the Indiana delegation. Whether Hoover will submit his candidacy to the Republicans of Illinois in opposition to former Gov. Lowden is uncertain.

Willis Indorsed, 19 to 1.

Columbus, O., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Battle lines between friends of Senator Frank B. Willis, who was given the Republican state committee's endorsement for President today, and supporters of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, were being formulated tonight in anticipation of Hoover entering the Ohio primary in April.

The senator's friends pointed to the committee's endorsement by a 19 to 1 vote as answer to a statement made in Washington this afternoon by congressman Theodore E. Burton, of Cleveland, that sentiment in Ohio is for Hoover.

State Chairman Fred W. Warner declared "Senator Willis is the choice of Ohio. Aside from that, the real sentiment for any outside candidate is for Vice President Charles G. Dawes."

NURSE TESTIFIES SCHIRESON AIDED IN LEG OPERATION

Says Another Doctor Cut Through Bones.

A third version of the leg straightening operation performed in the Chicago Osteopathic hospital on Miss Sadie Holland was told yesterday. It was given during the investigation begun when it was disclosed that the patient had been removed to the Wesley Memorial hospital, where her legs were amputated above the knees in an attempt to have her life.

Miss Edith Helgen, a nurse at the Osteopathic hospital, testifying before John W. Folmer of the state registration department and Assistant State Attorney Charles J. Mueller, said that she stood within two feet of Miss Holland during the operation.

Nurse Tells of Operation.

Dr. S. D. Zaph, she said, sawed through the tibia of each of Miss Holland's legs while Dr. Henry J. Schireson held back the flesh. Dr. Schireson had testified that he was engaged in removing a scar from the patient's shoulder and had glanced occasionally at Dr. Zaph's work on the legs. Dr. Zaph had stated to authorities that he merely assisted in the leg straightening.

"Somebody is lying," Folmer declared. "I'm going to bring other nurses in here on Monday to find out what did happen."

Dr. William H. Van Doren, family physician of the Hollands, who suggested the removal of the young woman to the Wesley Memorial hospital, and Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, who did the amputations, also made statements yesterday.

Family Physician Testifies.

Dr. Van Doren said that he suggested the transfer because he was not satisfied with the care that Miss Holland had received at the Osteopathic hospital. Her blood count, he said, taken neither before nor after the operation and other precautionary methods had been neglected, he said.

When he saw Miss Holland again, he said, she had been in an advanced stage of gangrene. Dr. Magnuson declared. He told her, he said, that amputation was the only measure that would save her life. She at first chose to die, the surgeon testified, but after a consultation with her family decided to submit to the operation.

In answer to a question from Folmer, Dr. Magnuson said that he refused to perform the amputation in the Osteopathic hospital.

Boys Accused of Theft to Be Sent Back Home.

Accused of the theft of more than $300 from five girls, Ray Hunt and Eldon Veach, both 19 years old, of 1433 East 65th place, were held by Judge Francis E. Allegretti in Boys court yesterday to await railroad fare from their parents back to their homes in Florida. The boys, messengers for the Illinois Central railroad, confessed they had cashed the pay checks of five stenographers entrusted to them for that purpose and then kept the money. The young women, Kathleen Bower, Ann Nugent, Leah Moberly, Grace Stephen, and Agatha Higgins, refused to prosecute.

GOAT THAT GREW SIX HORNS FOR SCIENCE IS DEAD

Madison, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A goat with six horns, produced by the genetic department of the University of Wisconsin, has given his all for the advancement of science, an announcement by Dean H. L. Russell, director of the experiment station, reports.

The experiment, covering a three year period, was carried on by W. F. Dove, formerly of the University of Wisconsin but now of the Maine experiment station, to determine what factors enter into the production of horns.

The unusual animal died recently, and now only the skull, with its set of projections, remains as evidence of the extraordinary experiment. Research conducted in the experiment revealed that the horns of cattle and goats have their beginning in the skin rather than the frontal bone of the head.

BRITISH SALUTE EARL HAIG WITH POMP OF EMPIRE

Great Mingle with War's Victims' at Funeral.

BY PAUL SHINKMAN. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.] LONDON, Feb. 3.—London was given over to a gigantic display of final homage to Earl Douglas Haig today when the body of the man who led the British armies in the final days of the world war, was drawn through the streets on its way to the grave.

Through streets packed with people since early morning, led by three of the king's sons and the greater warriors of the British empire and France, the procession passed from St. Columba's church, where there was a simple service, to Westminster abbey, where all the pomp of the empire was summoned for the final majestic obsequies at noon. The route then continued to Waterloo station, whence the flag draped casket was carried on a special train to St. Giles cathedral, Edinburgh. Later it will be taken to Benerhyde, Scotland, for burial in the ancient church beside Sir Walter Scott.

Mourners Wear Poppies.

Flags draped at half mast throughout the capital as thousands of war-scarred veterans and many pathetic blind and crippled soldiers gathered early in the morning from all corners of Great Britain to pay final tribute to the dead commander.

Scarlet poppies of Flanders fields on all sides, as well as within the abbey, showed the solitude for the crippled soldiers who make Flanders poppies at the Richmond factory set up by the late field marshal.

Shortly before noon the great cortege passed Buckingham palace, down the Mall, up Whitehall, and past the Cenotaph. At its head the draped coffin rested upon the historic gun carriage which carried the gun which fired the first British shell in the world war, and which later carried the body of the unknown soldier through the streets of London.

Prince of Wales Marches.

Next after the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, and Prince Henry came fourteen pall bearers, including Marshals Foch and Petain and Admirals Beatty and Jellicoe and Lieut. Gen. Baron de Courcil, representing the king of the Belgians, followed by hundreds of the empire's finest troops.

A pathetic, mute mourner was the field marshal's handsome charger, led by Sgt. Secrett, Earl Haig's batman for many years. The boots were reversed in the stirrups and Earl Haig's medals and insignia were carried on black cushions.

Earl Haig's favorite hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," was sung both at the services at St. Columba's and at the abbey, which, by last minute permission, was enabled to be carried by wireless to distant mourners, as well as to the thousands of soldiers who were unable to join the estimated 1,000,000 which lined the route of the hour and a half procession.

FLAMES LEAVE SWATH OF RUIN IN FALL RIVER

Property Loss Runs High in Millions.

(Pictures on back page.) Fall River, Mass., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—For the second time in twelve years a large part of the business center of this city tonight was a waste of smoking ruins, the result of a disastrous fire which swept the area surrounding city hall last night and early this morning.

Taking toll of the losses before the embers were yet cool, residents estimated the property damage variously from $7,000,000 to more than $15,000,000. Insurance investigators placed the loss even higher, in some cases at $25,000,000.

The damage was even greater than that caused by the conflagration of Feb. 16, 1916, which ravaged a similar section of the city.

Twenty Buildings Destroyed.

Items in the loss were: Twenty or more buildings destroyed and as many more damaged.

Approximately sixty stores and similar business establishments demolished or so badly damaged that it may be some time before they will operate at normal.

Several thousand persons out of employment.

Offers of assistance in the work of rehabilitation reached the city today from many sources, including the Red Cross. Due to the fact that the residential district was unscathed, there was little need for other than temporary aid in restoring business activities, and this came in the form of funds to enable the banks whose buildings were destroyed to resume operations.

Clear Burned Area.

Although streets in the center of the burned area remained impassable tonight, blocked by its coated piles of bricks, twisted steel and other debris, order was making its appearance in the confusion. Along the fringes of the district the pavements had been cleared and city officials predicted that communications would be largely restored before tomorrow night.

COSGRAVE JEERED AND ALSO CHEERED IN HIS LAST DAY AT NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—William T. Cosgrave, president of the Irish Free State, was jeered by a group of Columbia university students, warmly cheered by distinguished members of the bench and bar, and praised by Mayor Walker on his final day in America.

The Irish president went aboard the Olympic tonight, and will sail for home at 3 a. m. He was worn out from his long tour, and Dr. J. J. Kilken of Chicago, his physician, advised him not to attend the Emerald ball at the Waldorf Astoria.

While President Cosgrave was making his final visits, Eamon De Valera, the Irish republican leader and arch-enemy of the Cosgrave regime, was informing reporters at his hotel that his party never would compromise with the present Irish government.

BIG SHIP TODAY TESTS WIDTH OF PANAMA CANAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—When the new airplane carrier Saratoga goes through the Panama canal tomorrow she will come nearer scraping off her paint than any ship which heretofore has passed through.

Only two feet clearance on each side will remain after she enters the locks, her beam being 106 feet, and the locks having a width of 110 feet. Her length is 885 feet over all, and the locks are 1,000 feet long.

The British battle cruiser H. M. S. Hood has been the largest ship in tonnage to pass through the canal. She is only 860 feet long and has a beam of 105 feet.

CABINET PLACE FOR LINDBERGH STIRS COMMENT

Congress Has Been United in Honoring Hero.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—(Special.)—The Tribune's suggestion that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh be made the head of a new department of aviation aroused interest among members of congress today and promised to give impetus to the consideration of legislation to centralize and coordinate the air activities of the government.

That Col. Lindbergh would be a popular choice for secretary of aviation, in the event such a post were created, was evident. The recent action of the house in voting unanimously to award the highly prized congressional medal to Col. Lindbergh without even awaiting its consideration by committee, and the subsequent unanimous approval by the senate, show how the famous flyer is regarded by congress.

Public May Buy Medals.
As a further mark of congressional esteem, Senator Robinson (Dem., Ark.), minority leader of the senate, and Representative Tilton (Rep., Conn.), majority leader of the house, introduced identical bills today to authorize the striking of a "commemorative" medal to perpetuate in bronze the deeds of Col. Lindbergh. The medals would be sold at cost to the public.

Representative Tilton noted this Tribune editorial and commended the sentiments expressed relative to Col. Lindbergh's unusual achievements, but he doubted if congress is disposed to set up a separate department of aviation.

Doubts Creation of Department.
"Lindbergh will be a great asset to the cause of aviation," said Mr. Tilton. "I doubt, however, if congress will desire to create a new cabinet department. It will undoubtedly pass the bill for a Lindbergh medal. Lindbergh is worthy of any honor we can pay him."

Representative Madden (Rep., Ill.), chairman of the house appropriations committee, said that Col. Lindbergh should be made use of in the promotion of aviation.

"Lindbergh is a wonderful young man and should be used where his inspiration will help aviation," said Mr. Madden.

"Congress probably would not be willing to pass a bill merging the air service under a secretary. Personally I have favored consolidation of the war and navy departments as a means of defense economy. It would be my opinion that the air service should be subordinate to this department rather than entirely independent."

Curry to Press "Defense" Bill.
Representative Curry (Rep., Cal.) who has sponsored a bill creating a department of national defense in which military and naval aviation would be combined as one of its major branches, indicated that hearings on the measure would be sought within the next few weeks.

Thus far the administration has opposed suggestions that the air service be combined. President Coolidge at one time was inclined to favor the bill creating a department of national defense, but finally decided to oppose it. Secretary of War Davis and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur have favored preserving the present status.

Proposals for combining air services were submitted to the Morrow commission appointed by President Coolidge, but that body, which was headed by Dwight W. Morrow, present ambassador to Mexico, failed to give its approval. The legislation which was subsequently enacted created an assistant secretaryship for air in each of the three departments maintaining aviation activities—war, navy, and commerce—was in line with the recommendations of the Morrow board.

Col. Lindbergh did not comment on the message and did not answer when asked to whom he would deliver it. He spoke to the lawmakers on commercial aviation, telling them air communication between the United States and Porto Rico would be easy and that it would come soon.

Will Hop Off Today.
Col. Lindbergh will hop off for Santo Domingo tomorrow and plans to arrive there at 2 p. m.

Many gifts were added to his collection today, including a book containing welcomes from school children in English, a Masonic medal, candy, and other delicacies. The chamber of commerce presented him with a chest of table linen for his mother.

Message to Americans.
SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Porto Rican legislature's message to the American people said in part:

"The good wishes of Porto Rico will go with you to the land of the brave and the free, and to your country and to your people, and will convey a message to Porto Rico not far different from the cry of Patrick Henry—'Liberty or death.' It is the same in substance with but a difference imposed by the change of times and conditions."

Plans for Freedom.
"The message of Porto Rico to your people is, grant us the freedom that you enjoy, for which you struggled, which you worship, which we deserve, and which you promised us. We ask the right to a place in the sun of this land of ours, brightened by the stars of our glorious flag."

The American good will flyer will take off tomorrow for Santo Domingo, 256 miles away.

French Aces to Hop Today.
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The French trans-Atlantic aviators, Desdonne Costes and Joseph Lebrun, are ready for their flight from Mexico City to New Orleans tomorrow.

Al G. Barnes Bitten by Frightened Zebra.
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Al G. Barnes, noted circus man, was confined to a hospital here today following an attack upon him by a zebra.

The veteran circus man was leading the animal about the winter show quarters yesterday when it became frightened and ran, dragging Barnes for some distance. In his struggles to regain control he was severely bitten and lacerated by the zebra.

Announcement of new lower prices.

Message to Americans.
SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Porto Rican legislature's message to the American people said in part:

"The good wishes of Porto Rico will go with you to the land of the brave and the free, and to your country and to your people, and will convey a message to Porto Rico not far different from the cry of Patrick Henry—'Liberty or death.' It is the same in substance with but a difference imposed by the change of times and conditions."

Plans for Freedom.
"The message of Porto Rico to your people is, grant us the freedom that you enjoy, for which you struggled, which you worship, which we deserve, and which you promised us. We ask the right to a place in the sun of this land of ours, brightened by the stars of our glorious flag."

The American good will flyer will take off tomorrow for Santo Domingo, 256 miles away.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 3.—The Porto Rican legislature conferred a commemorative medal on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today and at the same time commissioned him to bear a message from the people of Porto Rico to the people of the United States asking for freedom for the island.

Col. Lindbergh did not comment on the message and did not answer when asked to whom he would deliver it. He spoke to the lawmakers on commercial aviation, telling them air communication between the United States and Porto Rico would be easy and that it would come soon.

Will Hop Off Today.
Col. Lindbergh will hop off for Santo Domingo tomorrow and plans to arrive there at 2 p. m.

Many gifts were added to his collection today, including a book containing welcomes from school children in English, a Masonic medal, candy, and other delicacies. The chamber of commerce presented him with a chest of table linen for his mother.

AUTO SHOW ENDS TONIGHT WITH ALL RECORDS BROKEN

2,000,000 See Exhibits at Various Displays.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.
The automobile show at the Coliseum will close tonight at 10:30 o'clock, terminating Chicago's 28th and greatest annual automotive exposition held under direction of the national automobile chamber of commerce.

From all quarters the expression that the present show has been materially more successful than any of the exhibitions of the past, was voiced. Unofficial reports from all exhibitors showed that each exceeded last year's record for car sales. The attendance at the Coliseum is estimated at nearly 700,000.

Aside from the Coliseum show, several others were in operation at the same time, such as the special exhibitions by Ford, General Motors, Overland-Whippet, Hudson-Essex, Chrysler, Packard, and Dodge, and the automobile salons at the Drake and Edgewater Beach hotels.

Last night it is estimated that the individual exhibitions had thus far attracted nearly a million persons. The total estimated attendance at all shows and salons is indicated at nearly 2,000,000 people.

A PROHIBITION AGENT GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

John Beyer Jr. has been found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to a term of one to four years in the penitentiary. He was an unauthorized evidence getter for prohibition enforcement, with a gun, a star, and the support of the drys in Beloit, Wis. He made a raid in South Beloit, which is in Illinois, shot the owner of the place where he bought liquor, left him to bleed to death while he took the evidence and the man's bartender to the police station and collected $40 as his commission out of the fine imposed on the bartender.

He was young and not only without authority but without any qualifications for authority. He had no judgment, certainly not the common sense required by his gun, his badge, and his fee collecting enterprise, but he was supported by the W. C. T. U., the Anti-Saloon league and church organizations before the killing and after it with the contention that a man who sold liquor had rightly forfeited his life.

The community had prepared for this and, without the verdict which had been given, for other killings, by an ordinance which paid money to private investigators, raiders, and stool pigeons, thus inducing just such weak, irresponsible, scatterbrained youngsters to assume authority for what they should have been jailed, and to commit murder. There was not only money in it but there was prohibition approval and acclaim. The killer could pocket his fee and be a person of public distinction.

The trial was in Rockford, Ill., and the jury was composed of citizens of repute, most of them, it is to be noted, advocates of prohibition. The theory of the defense was that the public opinion of the community rightly sustained any agent of prohibition enforcement, with or without authority, with legal or illegal possession of gun and badge, to kill any prohibition violator as his judgment directed, whether he was capable of judgment or not.

It may be said for this defense that it has sanction in prohibition circles where the law against murder has been discarded as it comes in the way of summary law. It has precedent in the government poisoning of alcohol, in the prevention of analysis to detect this poisoning, in the killings by authorized federal agents. It has sanction in the opinion of organizations of citizens zealous for enforcement. The United States treasury department, which directs federal enforcement, adds to the sanction the protection given its guilty agents by withdrawing them from trial by the state courts into the shelter of the federal.

Beyer, unauthorized by any one, although the South Beloit chief of police knew what he was doing, did not have federal protection. He went to trial in a state court with his supporters making this defense. He was shot and killed by a wrongdoer because the man he shot and allowed to die without attention was a liquor seller. The murdered man had been outlawed by violation of a summary law and killing him was not a crime. It is fortunate, to the great credit of a jury which did not condone the murdered man's offense, that such murder was not declared justified by proper public policy. If it had been the quick trigger weaklings would have been encouraged, by money, acclaim, and immunity, to shoot on any suspicion or provocation. Any man with a gun would have considered himself free to kill if he could claim the sanction and protection of prohibition enforcement as an inducement to the act and as immunity afterwards.

ARGENTINE GRAIN AND THE MIDWESTERN FARMER.

Argentina's principal representative at the Pan-American congress, Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, has been urging a reduction of high tariff barriers to international trade among the American countries. He has so far succeeded as to introduce a formal statement in the Pan-American union's subcommittee, in the form of a preamble to the draft convention of the union, asking not only a reduction of customs duties but an elimination of duties on agricultural products of certain classes.

The Argentine position is easy to interpret. Argentina wants the United States to be a free market for its exports, which are largely the products of agriculture.

South America as a whole is inevitably an exporting territory in its relation with the United States. Argentina, however, is an importing country in its United States trade. The bulk of our South American commerce is with Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Colombia. All these but Argentina export more to us than they import. Argentina has no trump card like coffee or sodium nitrate. Her exportable products are those of the American farmer and the tariff stands in the way. Except for flaxseed, some wool, and some hides, Argentina is unable to export her agricultural products to the United States with profit. What her delegates at Havana are after, then, is a tariff reduction which will enable Argentina to send her wheat and her corn to this country. Argentina is one of the half dozen largest wheat growing countries in the world, and her corn crop, while far behind that of the United States, is the second largest in the world.

It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that the delegates of the United States—as it has been intimated they will do—will find Argentina's proposal one that would conflict with this country's national policy and will refuse to sanction it. The wheat and corn farmers of the middle west are in no position to face competition from a new source.

THE PASSING OF GORMAN.

Arthur E. Gorman has been discharged by the city of Chicago from the position of chief sanitary engineer. He was charged with incompetence and incompatability. The city is the loser. Mr. Gorman had a distinguished record in the United States public health service before he came to Chicago and his work in Chicago has been of a quality to earn for him the Diven medal for the most distinguished contribution to waterworks engineering in 1927, the highest honor to be won by a member of his profession. He is still a young man and his career is before him. The fact that he was removed by the present city administration will never be considered a black mark upon his record.

Mr. Gorman refused to enter an appearance in his own defense before the city civil service commission. He did write a letter to the commission in which he stated bluntly that he saw no reason to anticipate a fair trial and would therefore not waste time and money in defending himself. His lack of confidence in the commission is widely shared in and out of the public service. Civil service reform was the fruit of a generation of political uplift. It was written into law only after a bitter struggle. Civil service was intended to attract such men as Gorman into the public service and keep them there. It was to prevent successful politicians from removing the Gormans and from replacing them with incompetents whose chief merit was political activity in behalf of the successful candidate for elective office. The reform worked only so long as the pressure of an aroused public opinion operated as a check upon the politicians' instinct to divide the spoils of victory.

Direct primaries, the direct election of senators, nonpartisan aldermanic elections and other reforms of the sort have had, at best, a limited usefulness. Some of the reforms worked well for a time and others, like direct primaries, never accomplished what was expected of them. Some of the reforms failed because they were badly conceived, but more of them because of the moral bankruptcy of the Republican party in Illinois. Time spent in attempting to reform the machinery of government in this state and city is time wasted so long as the machinery remains in the hands of the men who now control it in their own interest. The first task of reform must be the reformation of the party.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES.

Germany has a new minister of defense, Gen. Groener, who succeeds Otto Gessler. Herr Gessler went out of office following disclosure that money intended for the German army was being used for purposes which did not seem to have much to do with the safety of Germany. More than $2,500,000 went to subsidize the Phoebe Film company to prevent, so it was said, the control of this German company from passing into American hands.

Germany is only one of the many foreign countries which now are being financed in greater or less degree by American investors. Germany happens to be one of the better governed of these nations, as may be gathered from the circumstance that the Phoebe Film scandal was followed by a change in the ministry. It is scarcely to be wondered at that American bankers insist upon placing a representative in the position of budget controller in most of the countries to which loans are made; but even so, there is reason to fear that the eventual revelations of the uses and abuses to which borrowed American capital has been put in foreign lands since the war will make a curious chapter in international financial history. Borrowed money is easily spent. Sometimes American money has been wasted and more than once it has been employed to hamper American industry in the foreign field.

Editorial of the Day

ON CORSETS AND SELF-CONTROL.

(New York Herald-Tribune.)

Full of optimism for the downfall of what she has pleased to call a "corset civilization," Mrs. Bertrand Russell bursts upon us with such cheering words as these: "Thank heaven, the time is coming to us these! Conditions are improving and will continue to do so. Inhibitions are being thrown off, and it is more and more realized that asceticism has no place in this modern civilization." How comforting such a perfect faith must be!

However, though we hold no brief for corsets or for the puritanism which Mrs. Russell espouses in the same breath, it seems to us that a proper regard for the history of human "progress," if nothing else, would moderate her optimism. Man, so far as the records show, has never yet taken a step forward in one direction that he hasn't slipped backward in another. In fact, there are those, like Mrs. Russell's husband, who consider the whole notion of progress an illusion. But we won't go into that. The point of relevance to the present discussion is that while we of this age may be ridding ourselves of some of the faults of the Puritan, we are at the same time, or so Irving Babbitt says in the current Forum, discarding something the Puritan also had, whose lack is at the basis of the failure of contemporary life. Prof. Babbitt speaks of it as the "principle of control."

"The characteristic evils of the present age," he writes, "arise from unrestrained violation of the law of measure and not, as our modernists would have us believe, from the tyranny of taboos and traditional inhibitions."

Thus, "with the decline of this inner control there has been an increasing resort to outer control," specifically to all manner of sumptuary laws which are quite as certain the products of temperance as wild as so much of the free verse lately penned or the futuristic art painted. For the humanitarian needs self-control quite as much as the artist. Prohibition, like dadaism, is the product of inhibitions, but of their lack.

But possibly Mrs. Russell approves of prohibition. Somehow we fail to see any net gain for human freedom in the substitution of blanket legislation for personal inhibition. What shall it profit a man if he loses his own corset and gains a national straight-jacket?

MEDICAL SCHOOLS AND INDUSTRY.

LET us hope that each of our university presidents will read this article. Let them study the comic strip in which I am explaining to their grandchildren, may we ask any professor whose attention strays this way to bring the following proposal to the notice of his board.

The proposal is not mine, though I made a similar proposal to a medical faculty nearly ten years ago but without result. Perhaps present day proposals have to be made in winning ways. This proposal comes from Dr. W. A. Sawyer of the Eastman company. It is that medical colleges affiliate great industrial establishments just as they now affiliate great hospitals. He would have each medical school establish a department of physiologic living. In this department he would not object if this department was called the department of hygiene. This department would teach by the clinical method. The clinical material would be supplied by the affiliated industrial establishments.

The department would have two great duties. One would be teaching. It would teach well men how to keep well. Dr. Sawyer says physicians know very little about good health habits, and at that, they practice less than they preach. He would have every doctor trained in personal hygiene. Furthermore, he would have him begin as a teacher of his clients by setting them examples. The second function of this department would be to take care of the health in all of the establishments of the thousands of men and women working in the affiliated industry. Incidentally, the truth or error of some of our rules of hygiene could be tried in this great body of employees. The facts disclosed by this investigation would be passed on to the public just as the results of laboratory and clinical research in other fields are made available.

In such an institution the effects of ventilation, heating, lighting, fatigue, rest periods, eating habits, sleeping habits, drinking, smoking, and many other influences could be investigated and rules based upon controlled observation could be worked out. This would be done in such a way as not to interfere with production. In fact, it may even increase production.

Dr. Sawyer knows what he is talking about. He has been in his present work for years. He and his associates see the CAIRO.—An officer of the gunboat fleet arrived here with the startling intelligence from Island No. 10 that on the night of Feb. 1, as the gunboat New Era was lying off the island, it was suddenly attacked by a large rebel force from the Tennessee shore. The New Era returned the fire, and quite a battle ensued. At daylight, when the rebels were getting the worst of it, they beat a hasty retreat down the river. A Paducah dispatch says that the Union commander, apparently, was attacked by a rebel force on an early hour this morning and that at 4 o'clock this afternoon an engagement would be going on. Gen. Grant has arrived at Vicksburg.

CAMP BELOW NASHVILLE.—There are two divisions of Polk's corps at Shelbyville. Cheatman and Withers are both on the other side of Duck river. McCowan's division is between Tullahoma and Shelbyville. The rebels recently have been moving artillery in direction of the bridgehead, and the intention of abandoning the Duck river line. Hardee's corps is at Tullahoma and Manchester. The rebels are erecting fortifications at Bridgeport, and doubtless will fall back to the line of the Tennessee river. Bragg is making desperate efforts to enforce conscription, and his soldiers are all down on him.

CHICAGO.—John Davis and Mrs. Eliza Higgins were married on Jan. 31 by the Rev. Arza Brown.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Edwin D. Morgan, Republican, was elected United States senator in place of Preston King.

CHICAGO.—At the meeting of the board of education Dr. Foster of the commission on examination of teachers announced that teachers' certificates had been granted to Samuel E. Miller and Samuel W. Pierce.

MONTEPELIER, Vt.—Vermont is no longer a prohibition state. By a majority of 1,642, with only seven small towns missing, the people have gone on record for the licensing of saloons after more than half a century. In 1853 Vermont voted for prohibition by a majority of 1,500.

CHICAGO.—Before the council committee many reasons were given why automobiles should not be given. President W. C. Gray of the automobile club declared the aldermen might as well insist that every man in Chicago should wear a number. In addition to the motorists' troubles in the city, they were threatened with a law establishing a speed limit of 12 miles an hour in all parts of the state.

CHICAGO.—Miss Stella Kaufman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kaufman of Dubuque, Ia., and Benjamin Mandel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Mandel, were married at the Standard club by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch.

CHICAGO.—At the annual meeting of the Goodrich Transportation company in Milwaukee, A. W. Goodrich was elected president, E. L. Upton, Chicago, president, and W. J. Lauderbach, Chicago, treasurer.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE.—American troops are now occupying a sector of the Lorraine front in France, directly east of Nancy. This announcement is permitted by the military censor. The whole sector is surrounded with the boom of guns. A German barrage fire last night at sundown opened the American position, and many days along the American sector, the American artillery replying shell for shell as the firing of the heavy guns spread along several kilometers of front.

CHICAGO.—Police reported that at least two members of the band that held up the Illinois Central station at Randolph street, killed Dennis Tierney and escaped with $1,500 are under arrest. They are Harry Emerson, alias Emery, and William Wilson. Efforts to connect George Raymond, the bandit killed in the battle with police at Crawford avenue and Arlington street, and his companion, George Moran, with the I. C. robbery were not successful.

CHICAGO.—Registration of German enemy alien will start this morning at every police station in Chicago.

CHICAGO.—Clement and Raymond Manning, newspaper reporters, saved the life of their mother, who was ill with pneumonia, when fire destroyed the upper portion of their house at 4515 St. Louis avenue. They wrapped their mother in blankets and carried her to a neighbor's home.

OTHER WAR NEWS.—German peace strikers were ordered to return to work today or face death by court martial. Heavy artillery fighting is in progress between the Teutons and the Italians along the lower Pave river. Berlin claims the repulse of French and British raids.

BOSTON.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt was notified that a place has been reserved for him on the list of pallbearers at the funeral on Feb. 6 of his old friend John L. Sullivan.

Elms, Sigrid and all the rest. Were there, though you had not guessed That night; when asked to call. That they were hiding in the hall. Surprise, surprise, they called at you And gave you bits of pink and blue Linen, with lace and puff; Garments made of fragile stuff. Each maiden's heart held with your own The joy that in your blue eyes shone. I wasn't asked, no man you see Could share with girls your ecstasy. However, I have a thought for you Made of words in pink and blue. When God has made you two as one, I hope; as each new day's begun, As each year you start anew, That life shall call: Surprise, to you.

KNOWERS OF THE STARS.

MAYOR THOMPSON'S idea of changing the shape of the stars in the city's flag is attracting almost as much attention as he thought it would. "The next thing we expect to hear," says the New York World, "is that he is insisting on changing the city's motto. If well, demanding that the words be separated by a comma." Well, since about all the average New Yorker knows about Chicago is that His Honor is its mayor, we thought that's the way they wrote it down there now.

Anyway, this morning I heard he was sick, and a strange feeling came over me that I must, somehow I must, do something about it. Dick, who makes us smile or chuckle or shout with laughter over the (if it weren't for him) dreariest meal of the day—sick! Dick, who has his first real book coming out next week and all the fun of it waiting for him—sick! It couldn't be! A world left right in which such injustice could happen. A SOLDIER'S PAST.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—In the court martial of Capt. Bass for alleged transportation of liquor some one violated one of the most sacred promises of the government of the United States when several of the character witnesses were told about an alleged desertion in 1916 and a subsequent fraudulent enlistment in 1919.

The sacred promise of the United States to enlisted men is that if they ever are dishonorably discharged and restored to honorable duty the past misbehavior is forgotten so long as they do not again become dishonorably discharged. The record of past desertions and dishonorable discharges is brought forward only for the information of the members of a court martial and to them in secret when all the evidence of the case has been presented and they have decided upon a verdict of guilty. The past record is then shown them to help them determine the punishment. We still maintain disciplinary barracks where men who have been sentenced to dishonorable discharge can make an effort to come back. Capt. Bass' record since 1919 showed that he did come back. Looking at this trial, I think the biggest offense Capt. Bass committed in the eyes of some one high in authority is to come from the ranks and keep his command in the hospital. I know that this is not the feeling of most of the ranking officers.

WHERE AND HOW?

Janeville, Wis., Jan. 31.—In The Tribune of Jan. 21 is an editorial about a trust of 2½ acres now belonging to the state of Minnesota to be ceded by the United States to Canada. Now I am curious to know just where these 2½ acres are located and as to the right of the United States to cede state land to a foreign government.

CUNNINGHAM.

HE KNOWS ABOUT RACKETEERS

Chicago, Jan. 25.—I am certainly surprised at Mr. Strawn's statement that he was never held up, robbed or molested in his 34 years in Chicago. Let him start some small business, such as cleaner, tailor or laundry, and I will wager he will change his mind. These racketeers are never so bad as they are at the present time. Their main job to force small dealers into their organizations is that they are affiliated with the Federation of Labor. Do we ever hear of the Federation of Labor investigating these racketeers committing these hold-ups, sluggings and bombings? They seem to be content to close their eyes and say nothing as long as they pay their dues. This is not a trade against honest labor but I protest against labor having such a scum in its ranks. POINCARÉ WINS FIGHT AGAINST PEGGING FRANC

No Stabilization Until After Election.

BY JAY ALLEN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Revealing definitely for the first time that there would be no legal stabilization of the franc until the newly elected parliament convenes, Premier Poincaré this afternoon finished his long awaited financial program amid the most thunderous ovation any orator has received in the chamber of deputies since the war.

Speed Wins Votes.
It is admitted on all sides that the result of the nine hour speech which the disgraced finance minister started yesterday afternoon, continued all morning and most of this afternoon will be to return the national union to power in the coming spring elections. This will give Premier Poincaré his coveted opportunity to slash what all but the most rabid left wingers admit he has been practically doing—complete the financial rejuvenation of the franc.

Until yesterday it was believed in most political circles that France was due to swing further to the left in the coming election. The finance wizard has now succeeded in rallying enough radical votes, which heretofore were doubtful, to enable him to remain in office until after the elections.

Debt Questions Up to Parliament.

"I will not ask stabilization until the condition is best possible," Premier Poincaré told the chamber. "I do not propose to stabilize at 150 francs to the pound sterling, as many urge. That is too hard on investment holders. Neither am I willing to stabilize under present conditions. The time to legalize the money will come in the next parliament, but it will not come through any magic transformation," he warned the deputies.

Mentioning debts, the premier rapped the financiers who said France could not stabilize its currency without regulating the international obligations.

"I still want parliament to have all freedom to decide the debt questions and I do not intend to force the issue," he said.

Asks for Job as Machine

Gunner on Police Force

A letter from H. L. Jackson of Athens, Ga., asking for a job as a machine gunner was received yesterday by Deputy Police Commissioner William E. O'Connor. Mr. Jackson said he understood that the police here needed accurate gunners to overcome gangsters and added that he was an expert. The commissioner informed him that he would have to be a policeman first, but that he could take the examinations if he wished.

Woman Killed by Train

Miss Mary Rita Wood, 24, of 4935 West 31st street, Cicero, was killed when she was struck by a Douglas park elevated train at the 50th avenue grade crossing yesterday afternoon. She had just left one train when she stepped into the line of another. A watchman asserted that he had shouted a warning to her, but that she failed to heed it. Miss Wood formerly lived at Farmersburg, Ind.

RIOTS IN INDIA PROTEST BRITISH INQUIRY; 1 KILLED

Simon Board Met by
"Mourning Strike."

BOMBAY, Feb. 3.—(AP)—India's determination to boycott the Simon commission on Indian affairs as a protest against the British government's failure to appoint Indian representatives to the body, took active form today from the moment of the arrival of the commission in this city. Heavily armed police guards had to be employed at the docks to protect the commission from the unwelcome attentions of demonstrators.

Viceroy Lord Irwin, addressing both houses of the Indian legislature at Delhi yesterday, earnestly appealed to those concerned in the boycott movement to refrain from a course which he said could have only negative results and which might entail unfortunate consequences.

Order "Mourning Strike."

This appeal, however, failed to avert serious demonstrations in Bombay. "hartal," or mourning closure, was clamped down with all its force in all three places.

The strike, for such the "hartal" amounted to, brought with it rioting in Calcutta and Madras, and in the latter city conflict with the police in which one person was killed and seven or more were wounded. Europeans returning to their homes there in automobiles were attacked and their cars smashed.

The protests in Bombay continued late this evening when a mass meeting was being held. At a mass meeting of students earlier in the day officials representing Ramsay MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin, and Sir John Simon were burned.

Burn Effigies of Britons.

Sir John Simon, head of the commission, inaugurated his stay in India by an attempt to create an atmosphere of reconciliation before leaving for Delhi. He received delegations of Hindus and Moslems and expressed eagerness to hear every shade of opinion. He promised them that after settling at Delhi, the commission would do its best to remove misunderstandings and suspicions, and would take every opportunity to consult with Indian representatives who will be willing to meet with it.

Wife Asks $50,000 Bail

for Ex-Actor's Lost Love

Notice of a suit for $50,000 damages, charging alienation of affections, was filed yesterday by Attorney Arnold M. Ehrlich for Mrs. Louise Kuesch Danna of 1212 East 45th street, against Bert Hold John, wealthy and retired, of 8247 Winthrop avenue, and his youthful wife, Mrs. Theresa John. Mrs. Danna is charged that Mr. and Mrs. John alienated her 22 year old husband, Henry, formerly a motion picture actor in Germany, now manager of a west side bakery, and that Danna is now in love with Mrs. John.

ASKS EXTENSION OF RED CROSS TO ALL OF AMERICAS

Plea Put to Pan-American Conference.

[Copyright: 1928, By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 3.—The sixth Pan-American conference at a business plenary session gave unanimous consent today to projects of common interest to the republics of the western hemisphere. Among these were recommendations for establishing schools for training physicians in quarantine and other international public health work, and the creation of permanent national health services in all the American republics along the lines of the United States public health service.

Hughes Voices Tribute.

One recommendation called for extension of Red Cross societies throughout the Americas. This brought from Charles Evans Hughes, for the United States delegation, an eloquent tribute to the work of that organization. He referred to these societies as ministering angels. They deserved the support of the conference, he said, but they could not obtain that support merely by passing resolutions. The appeal, he held, must be to the governments represented in the conference. Mr. Hughes pointed out that the Red Cross was backed by the unanimous sentiment of 120,000,000 people in the United States.

Envoys Fight for Free Press.

Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban ambassador to the United States, protested against a resolution offered by the Mexican delegation proposing action by governments against the communication and publication by the press of what the resolutions described as "false, misleading or exaggerated reports" injurious to any American country.

Ambassador Ferrara said:

"I wish to make of record the fact that Cuba in its constitution and its law approves of the maximum liberty of the press, in the belief that all the evils of the press that may result from its liberty will be cured by that very liberty."

The prisoners, Louis Costabile, 30, 1114 South Morgan street, and his brother, Angelo, 25, were arrested by Lieut. Paul Riccio through similarity of Costabile's handwriting with that of threat letters received by Heda.

WAR HERO SENT BACK TO PRISON FOR THREE YEARS

William L. Cunningham, 42 years old, wearer of the distinguished service cross and the croix de guerre, given him for saving the life of Gen. Petain of the French army during the world war, was sentenced to three years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and fined $1,000 yesterday by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley. Cunningham was found guilty by a jury of impersonating a federal officer.

Cunningham, it was charged, defrauded Miss Marie Rosinke, 3639 South Hoyne avenue, of a diamond stickpin, clothing and $10 in cash by representing himself as a deputy warden at Leavenworth and telling Miss Rosinke he would have Francis Hoffman, her sweetheart, released from the penitentiary.

Cunningham and Hoffman were cellmates at Leavenworth, the former having been sent there as a military prisoner for violating the prohibition law. He had only recently been released.

It was at Bourneville, on Oct. 14, 1918, when Cunningham threw Gen. Petain, known as "the defender of Verdun," into a shell hole and saved his life when a bomb exploded nearby. Sixty men were killed by the explosion. He was also cited by Gen. Pershing for his single handed capture of ten Germans.

TWO ACCUSED BY WOMAN SPY HELD IN $680,000 BOND

Lawyer Says He'll Fight for Habeas Corpus.

A court fight will open today in an effort to obtain reduction of the $680,000 bonds under which Ted (Spider) Meyers and Frank Covelli, owners of the Spider Web cafe, was held yesterday by Judge John H. Lyle in Grand Crossing court, Attorney Daniel A. Wolf said.

Meyers and Covelli were held to the grand jury when they appeared in answer to complaints of Mrs. Betty Rubenstein, 4217 North Paulina street, Mrs. Rubenstein alleged that the pair beat her and her husband, Joseph, when they tried to buy liquor at the cafe, which is in the basement of the Claridge hotel. The cafe men are charged with kidnapping, assault to kill, larceny and robbery.

Pair Given Year in Bridewell.

Mrs. Rubenstein declared that she had been hired by Mrs. Margaret Vignes, owner of the hotel, to find out if the cafe was selling liquor so that Mrs. Vignes might cancel the lease. In addition to fixing the high bonds against Meyers and Covelli, Judge Lyle gave them each a sentence of one year in the Bridewell and fined them $500 apiece on charges of carrying concealed weapons. Mrs. Rubenstein testified that the pair not only beat her and her husband but threatened her with revolvers and forced her into an automobile after declaring they intended to take her "for a ride."

Says He'll Ask Work.

Attorney Wolf said no one could raise "such prodigious bonds," and declared he is drawing up a habeas corpus petition, which will be filed today before a circuit or criminal judge. He also termed as "high handed" the action of Capt. Thomas Condon of Hudson avenue police, in taking his clients into court without notifying him. He said he cannot explain why the captain chose to take the defendants "many miles out of his way" to Judge Lyle's court rather than have them arraigned at the nearby Chicago avenue court.

In statements to Capt. Condon, Meyers and Covelli denied all the charges of Mrs. Rubenstein. The woman and her husband were rescued from an automobile containing Meyers and Covelli at Clark and Division streets.

CHICAGOANS ON COMMITTEE FOR ENGINEER PARLEY

Samuel Insull, Prof. A. A. Michelson and Ralph Modjeski have been appointed by Secretary Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman, as members of the American Committee of the World Congress of Engineers, to be held in Tokyo, Japan, in November, 1929. Word of their appointment was received yesterday from Dr. Elmer A. Sperry, chairman of the committee.

The congress is to be the first of its kind. Its purpose is to promote international cooperation in the study of engineering science and to stimulate a sense of brotherhood among the engineers of the world, according to Baron K. Furukuchi, president of the Engineering Society of Japan. Other well known members of the American committee appointed by Secretary Hoover are Thomas A. Edison, John Hays Hammond, Charles M. Schwab, and Orville Wright.

YOUTHFUL DRY'S ARREST REACTS ON DRY CHIEF

Ford Is Transferred from Washington.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Robert D. Ford, assistant prohibition administrator for the Washington district and the official who directed the dry raid resulting in the slaying of Charles F. Gundlach, aged Leonardtown farmer, last fall, was transferred to Baltimore today following an investigation which disclosed one of his agents had hired a minor as a "dry spy."

Basil L. Quinn, the prohibition agent who hired the youth was reprimanded by Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran and warned never to repeat the offense. While Commissioner Doran said Ford had been transferred "for the good of the service," it was not denied that the action had been taken because of heavy by the deputy in hiring boys under twenty-one as informers. The publicity given the present dry regime by the slaying of Gundlach is also understood to have influenced the dry authorities.

The disclosure that a youth of seventeen was being employed as a "dry spy" came when police arrested Stewart Samuel Shelton on charges of accepting a bribe. The youth gave his age as 17, and said he had been placed on the dry pay roll by Agent Quinn and put to work.

Commissioner Doran admitted that Shelton had been hired, but said his name had never been placed officially on a prohibition contract. Quinn had hired the youth, he said, and sent him out to get evidence when Shelton told him he was twenty-two. Commenting on this angle, Seymour Lewman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of dry law enforcement, said the youth did not look to be 21 and should never have been hired.

From Shelton's story it is plain that the seventeen year old boy went out and purchased liquor at local speakeasies with the full knowledge of Dry Agent Quinn and most probably Ford.

Here Is Valuable Book for Aspiring Woman Journalists

ETHEL M. COLSON BRAXTON.

Scarcely a week passes without a letter coming into our hands asking how one can start in the business of writing books, how one gets a job on a newspaper, whether there is any way one can learn to be a publicity agent, and how dramatic criticism gets their work. And always the answer to the questions is as discouraging as the answers must be to the inquirers, for, after all, one can say so little beyond the obvious advice to start in and try to get the job. Now there will be an excellent and thoroughly helpful answer to all of those questions and many more, for Mrs. Braxton has written the sort of book that tells the inside how of every phase of writing and editing for women. And she has appended to each chapter the most valuable possible suggestion in a list of assignments to the potential newspaper person.

It has always been my advice to seekers for the literary life to write no matter about what, but just to write, so much every day, and as good writing as possible. That is excellent advice to give and excellent to take, but the usual person finds that he or she simply has nothing to write about, even when the new typewriter is all oiled and rattin' to go.

Mrs. Braxton supplies topics which are worth the effort of practice, and subjects which will really develop the writer's skill. "Writing and Editing for Women" is the best book of its sort that I have ever seen. It is a genuine help. The author is a lecturer at the McGill School of Journalism and an experienced newspaper woman in many phases of the work, including to this person at least—the most thrilling of all jobs on a newspaper, the business of being a literary editor.

The Gold of Margot.

Margot Aquino, the lady who wrote memoirs to such a golden time a few years ago, has reaped a second harvest from them, for she has just been paid $50,000 for the British and American rights to her first novel, which is to be called "Octavia." The $50,000 does not include royalties, which may well bring up her nestegg from her writing—well, figure it out. "Octavia" is to be given to the American public on April 26. (Business of sitting back VERY calmly and waiting.)

By NORMAN HAPGOOD & HENRY MOSKOWITZ

Based on personal contact with the Governor, as well as thorough research of family and political records, and state papers. It is an impartial, and critical study by two men who have been leaders in anti-Tammany movements in New York City.

"No newspaper editor or politician who desires all the facts can be without this volume, and likewise no citizen who wishes to know truths about the man."—OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD, The Nation.

SELMA LAGERLOF, MAY SINCLAIR, MARTHA OSTENSO.

These Three Books by Women Writers Will Interest You

"The Mad Caravan," by Martha Ostenso. (Dodd, Mead.)

Not since "The Life and Death of Harriett Freen" has May Sinclair written a story so perfectly turned as "History of Anthony Waring." This simple record of a man's existence from birth to grave moves and breathes with truth.

There are only 125 pages in the book. Every extraneous bit of material has been cut away. There is left something so starkly beautiful, so bare and perfect in outline and so complete as a whole, that an indelible impression of a rare and lovely thing is the result. Most writers can wax verbose, but few can whittle their material down to 125 pages. They lack the craftsmanship.

Anthony Waring was an idealist. He came into the world without any fanfare of trumpets and he left it equally quietly. His life was no different, perhaps, from that of the average man, except that it was characterized by a love of the beautiful, by an unceasing search for higher things. The pathetic fact about Anthony was that he really did not know what he was doing. Love came too late, and because the woman he loved was the wife of his friend, and because his honor was dearer even than she, he stepped aside.

"Charlotte Lovenekold" is a romance of modern Sweden. The background is interesting, but the story is heavy, unwieldy, and the translation only increases the general weightiness. The characters seem as stiff and awkward as their names. Ironmaster Schagerstrom of Stor Sotorn, Karl Arthur Ekensstedt of Korskryka, and Charlotte Lovenekold, Karl Arthur is pious to the point of fanaticism. Charlotte is his fiancée, and the plot—if any—is simply concerned with their spats, reconciliations and more spats. In the end you don't care if they never "make up." And they don't.

Sun-scorched and windwept is Eldor's Hollow of Martha Ostenso's book, where the mad Caravans subjected everything within their grasp. In the narrow boundaries of that northern Minnesota valley the reader rejoices, unknowingly at first, at the crop successes of Eliza Bower's family and despairs deeply at their failures and struggles and hardships. The romantic and genuine spirit of Bayliss compared to the superciliousness of the family of well-to-do Caravans, from which he sprang, gives the novel a unique freshness, as he Bayliss, woe the thoughtful and loving Eliza of the soil. The novel reaches dramatic heights in the fast moving chapters about this outwardly quiet community. The author creates a feeling for the beauty of the weird country and presents a studied characterization of these people of great inward emotions. Martha Ostenso develops eagerness and anxiety as to how the book will end, and when the reader does know all he feels as satisfied and relieved.

American Caravan Appeals to Writers for More Material

The editors of the American Caravan recently issued their second appeal to the writers of America for material. The first American Caravan has proved not only possible but popular. It was published by the Literary Guild for its subscribers and then by the Macaulay company for general distribution. In it the interested may find previously unpublished work by not only promising young American writers, but by many of the established writers of the public's fancy.

The editors of the American Caravan are Van Wyck Brooks, Alfred Kreymborg, Lewis Mumford, and Paul Rosenfeld. Their ambition was, and is, to assemble representative American work of all types, not merely the preconcerted preferences of one kind of editorial board. They have two objectives—that of giving the reader a survey of American literature and of giving the writer an opportunity to publish work which editors had not felt acceptable to the magazines they were sent to, or which, for their own personal reasons, they had not cared to submit to editors of the existing magazines.

They have accomplished both of their objectives in a sense and, I should say, equally successfully, just that. They have collected representative work from American writers, seventy-two in number, which does, in its panorama, give a survey of American literature today, but the work is not the best of the well known writers. There are some lovely and remarkable spots in the American Caravan, but mostly it seems to me, at least, to be a collection of second best or less important than that in many cases. Certainly it has a roster of distinguished names—Eugene O'Neill, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, William Ellery Leonard (who contributes the unpublished leaves from the manuscript of "Two Lives"), Gertrude Stein, Ernest Hemingway, Paul Green, Witter Bynner, John Dos Passos, Robert Ellinger and many others, and it is an impressive and worth while thing to have done. But the material is disappointing.

O'Brien Makes His Annual Rating of Best Short Stories

"The Best Short Stories of 1927," edited by Edward J. O'Brien. (Dodd Mead.)

For the thirteenth year Mr. O'Brien has published his rating of the previous year's short story output. Eminent young short story writers part with eagerness to get the book each year to see whether they have no stars in their crown, or one or two or three or, blessed by the gods, are reprinted in the part of the book where the very sheepest of the sheep are herded, for Mr. O'Brien meticulously plus some sort of recognition on every short story published during the year. The ordinary reader, however, gets the book because it is a collection of good short stories. The ones which wear the golden robes this year of being reprinted are by Owen Wister, Ernest Hemingway, who received the second O. Henry Memorial prize this year; Sherwood Anderson, Harold W. Brecht, Roark Bradford, who was awarded the first O. Henry prize; Ben Lucien Burns, Elizabeth Finley Thomas, Amory Hare, Joseph Hergesheimer, Du Bose Heyward, James Hopper, Oliver La Farge, Rose Wilder Lewis, Maxwell Le Stur, J. P. Marquand, Lyle Saxon, John S. Sexton, Frank Shay, Alan Sullivan, and Raymond Weeks.

THE HORSEMAN OF DEATH
by ANTHONY WINNE

Twice before the hoofbeats of a ghostly steed had brought death to the Black Horse. For the third time the night's stillness was broken by the sound of hoofs. Could it be the old Lord himself? Could it be the old Lord himself? Could it be the old Lord himself?...

Disraeli Is Made a Human Being in Maurois' Book

By Fanny Butcher.
"Disraeli," by Andre Maurois. (Appleton.)

Ever since Lytton Strachey gave the world that incomparable picture of "Queen Victoria," Disraeli has been awaiting the hand of a skilled biographer after the same fashion. Some of the rarest moments in "Queen Victoria" were those spent with "Disraeli," and if Mr. Strachey could have been persuaded to do a portrait of the prime minister, life would have seemed more bearable for most of us. When it was announced that Maurois was writing a life of Disraeli for most of our drooping days began to perk up, because, like "Queen Victoria" (although an entirely different type of thing), Maurois' "Ariel" was a perfect piece of work.

The eminent French writer has not, however, done what every one expected he would do in "Disraeli." He does not see his hero as the somewhat comic—but perfectly understood—sketch that he saw Shelley. But it wasn't with the life of an Ariel that he was dealing. He sees Disraeli as a great politician, with occasional flashes of Disraeli as an author and much rarer ones of Disraeli as a cartoonist. But Disraeli adjusted himself to life too well to be entirely comic—or entirely appealing. It is always those who fall of adjustment that give the creative artist the most material.

However, M. Maurois has done a splendid and memorable piece of biography writing in "Disraeli," for he has extracted his hero from those interminable Moneybags and Buckle volumes and made not a national figure but a human being of him.

He has done his portrait with sure and clean lines, and not with shadings and crisscrosses and back-grounds. There is just enough of the times to make the central figure comprehensible to intelligent readers (to whom the intricacies of elections and charges of ministry are always confusing). He has not even used the times as lights to illumine his central figure. But he has made that central figure one that you would know if you met him in Teheran or Tallahassee.

And the reason that he does that is because Disraeli was not, as so many men are, a product of his time, but as different as any one might be from his fellow men, and impressing rather than impressed by his surroundings. He was, although early baptized a Christian and brought up in the strictest English manner, an oriental with romantic backgrounds, the son of a man who cared only for his books and having inherited from his disgruntled mother almost a phobia about being a leader. Merely to equal his comrades was not bearable to him. He had to lead them.

His novels were really his dramas of a future bliss, and when he attained everything that had been the lot of his heroes he said: "It has come too late. There were days when, on waking, I felt I could move dynasties and governments, but that has passed away."

The story of his devotion to a woman years his senior, a woman who might have ruined him politically by her gaucheries, a woman whom he married against the advice of all of his friends, and the story of her devote to him Maurois tells without sentimentality but with the firm sentiment that must have founded the relation. There are lighter sides to the story—Mary Anne's devotion so passionate that for thirty-three years every fortnight she cut her hair's hair, and the moment when, sorting her papers, Disraeli found hundreds of little packets of the garnetings.

The story that we all wanted to hear more of, perhaps, was the story of Disraeli and his "Peary," as he was wont to call Queen Victoria. Maurois writes little-in comparison—about that relationship. But, measured in cycles of his life it was an intense but not long lived influence, and it is a rounded biography and not just something to amuse us that the author has done. The picture of the mourning husband of Mary Anne talking to the mourning wife of Albert, of the parting between the prime minister and his sovereign when "The queen presented her old friend with her statuette in bronze and a plaster cast of her pony," are not to be read without a chuckle.

"Disraeli" is unlike "Ariel," but "Ariel" was unlike any book on earth. "Disraeli" is a popular biography of the first order. It is written with brilliance (not false but innate) and is an important study of a strange shyness which manifested itself in arrogance. But it is not like so many modern biographies, written to prove an author's thesis. Most modern biographies are like skyscrapers. They prove the skill and power of their authors. "Disraeli" is like a mountain which proves nothing at all. It just is.

"King Edward VII," Vol. II, by Sir Sidney Lee. (Macmillan.)

The second volume of Sir Sidney Lee's official life of King Edward VII, as his fellow men, and impressing rather than impressed by his surroundings. He was, although early baptized a Christian and brought up in the strictest English manner, an oriental with romantic backgrounds, the son of a man who cared only for his books and having inherited from his disgruntled mother almost a phobia about being a leader. Merely to equal his comrades was not bearable to him. He had to lead them.

"Cleared for Strange Ports" by the Roosevelt family. (Scribner's.)

There is something old-fashioned and fragrant about the idea of this book. It is composed of papers written by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Richard Derby, and Kermit Roosevelt—papers about their wanderings over the face of the earth. Isn't it unusual for a family to combine its literary interests and publish a joint volume? The papers were, in many cases, very strange that they cleared for, and in other cases not so unusual, but in every case every one enjoyed the journey.

UNRESERVED PRAISE FROM CRITICS HERE AND IN ENGLAND

That is the record of THE BRIDGE OF SAN LUIS REY in the first few weeks since publication.

A search for an answer to the riddle of the universe forms the framework of the story. Five people are hurled to their death in the catastrophe of the collapse of The Bridge. Brother Juniper, a Franciscan monk, searches in the lives of these victims for a revelation of God's intention in thus casting them at that moment into eternity.

What a quest for a philosopher! And how bravely it might have been reported! And yet, Thornton Wilder, with humor, irony and always with charm and insight, reveals the hidden springs of these five people none the less profoundly because he does it so peacefully. When you have finished the last page the five characters remain in your memory more deeply etched than any five of your closest friends.

Those of us who have already read The Bridge carry you who still have in prospect the delight of reading it for the first time.

Orchestra and Quartet Win Elmer's Praise

Concert from W-G-N Is Best of Evening.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.
Eleven o'clock. And again the dials are tied up for my latest favorite, the W-G-N concert orchestra, on this late hour, partly because of the clarity of the new microphone in this studio, partly because of the beauty of the selections played, and partly because of the selections and singing of the mixed quartet.

Mark Love's excellent bass voice, though unannounced, was detected as the soloist in the impressive "Lohengrin" selection which closed with the quartet. In this connection, it is the unannounced name of Walter Fontus, tenor, who is now a member of the station's vocal staff, which aroused my admiration for the Celeste Adia during the 8 to 9 studio hour.

I was in a mood to pay attention to the quality of tone and spirit of the playing of the Little Symphony of Chicago during the greater part of their concert from W-G-N. This, and the quality of it, I found admirable. Their brilliancy, attacks, and team work, so to speak, were additional sources of enjoyment. Offshoots of George Dasch has much to be proud of here.

In casting about through my radio telescope I catch glimpses here and there of various ones on the nearby dial. In this connection, I am reminded in color and structure that of W-G-N's 10:10 "Sam N' Henry" creation. I find these forms visible at various hours of the day. A true attention to the quality of tone and spirit of the playing of the Little Symphony of Chicago during the greater part of their concert from W-G-N. This, and the quality of it, I found admirable. Their brilliancy, attacks, and team work, so to speak, were additional sources of enjoyment. Offshoots of George Dasch has much to be proud of here.

Then there is beauty in self-confidence which is a lack as a rule. I do not mean being overconfident to the point of brazenness, but the self-confidence one feels who has her courage and herself in perfect command.

Mrs. George H. Jones Dies After Long Illness

Mrs. Myrtilla A. Jones of 229 Lake Shore drive, wife of George Herbert Jones, one of the founders of the Industrial Steel company and president of the Hillside Fluorapat Mines, died at St. Luke's hospital yesterday after a long illness. She was 73 years old.

Sends $10 for Family Left Desolate as Father Is Slain

A check for $10, received by THE TRIBUNE from J. H. Bear, was forwarded yesterday to Mrs. M. G. Ottobello, 9320 Baltimore avenue. Her husband, George Pozak, desperate over the lack of fuel to keep his wife and two small children warm, was shot and killed Wednesday night while stealing coal. He had been without a work for several months.

Poise Is a Prime Ingredient in the Recipe for Charm

POISE is a beauty possession. It has its distinctive place in other affairs of life, but for beauty's sake, it's worth an intensive course of correcting the faults that ruin it.

A very pretty girl can, with a nervous twitching of her hands and feet, escape detection as a pretty girl. This was illustrated not long ago. Her eyes are of particular charm, violet with lashes that skirt her cheek bones, her hair a heavenly blue black. Some one was anxious to have her brother meet the beautiful one. But the beautiful did not register. Brother said whenever he was about to get around to her eyes her hands went up or out in a maddening gesture and her short nervous laugh spoiled whatever enthusiasm he might have had, had he reached the eyes.

A woman will sit down on a chair and hunch and pull at it, drum on its arms, or on the table at hand. To sit down gracefully and refrain from moving about, or twiddle at necktie or purse or something, or an over-pleasure. It is restful and there's beauty in the woman who can give out an aura of restfulness. A fussy person who makes endless movements with hands or head or feet is utterly lacking in poise. But the one who is free from flutter, who makes no futile movements, who is calm and dignified, who is free from the usual nervous wiggles all over the place emanates charm. Her attention is diverted to you because it is not turned upon herself. And that is the great secret of charm, as you know—being able to give your attention wholly heartedly.

One does not have to eliminate gestures. Some are pleasing in the extreme. Graceful gestures are always lovely, but are only graceful when the body is in perfect control.

TRIBUTE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.
Quick Graham Breads.
The quick Graham bread recipes give a product which seems particularly suitable for winter, especially when they contain raisins, which add a good deal to the caloric value of the breads. These breads may contain more or less of Graham flour.

A pleasant one is made as follows: One cup Graham flour, two cups white flour, one teaspoon salt, one egg, one and one-half cups sweet milk, one cup raisins put through the coarse sieve. Mix the dry ingredients, pour the liquid into it, gradually incorporate the raisins, and bake in a greased pan. The top crust should not be so much, but first the mixing was not even and thorough.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.
Little Girl Needs Coat.
"Do you know of some one who would like to give a winter coat to a poor little girl, aged 3? This dear child I know is without a warm wrap and she has to stay indoors on many nice days."

Children of this age spring up so quickly they are outgrown but which might do nicely for some other child. Look through the articles your young one can no longer use and I'm sure you'll find a coat for this three year old youngster.

At Table, Why Not Let Conversation Include the Children?

BY Mrs. Gladys Huntington.
I've been thinking about another aspect of this matter of table manners for the children—not merely the proper use of knives and forks, speed of eating, and the general mechanics of table manners, but table manners of conversation.

Of course, when children are so young that they eat by themselves or where it has been the custom in the family for the children of any age to have all their meals in the nursery, this conversational aspect of manners doesn't arise. It is only when children sit at the table with the grown-up members of the family that it assumes any importance.

It appears to me that as soon as children are accorded that privilege, whether it is from necessity or desire on the part of the parents, they should also be accorded other privileges—among them that of taking part in the conversation.

Especially in the evening, at dinner time, when the day's work is over, the meal becomes a sort of pleasant function, a reunion. No one is hurrying to do something else, every one is apt to be relaxed and sociable feeling. Then there is time to talk.

Very often the dinner table conversation is completely monopolized by the older people. To be sure, in some homes the children are not supposed to talk much at the table. They are expected to mind their manners and listen.

But often children are excluded from conversations not so much by any deliberate restrictions of their parents as because the only things discussed are those that have an interest only for grown-ups. There are clothes, and business, and help, and theaters, and books, and the other things that mean little to the boys and girls at the table. It is usually a quite unconscious thing on the part of the grown people, but the children are bored nevertheless.

When you think honestly about it, it isn't very courteous—admittedly we're expecting that of the children—we might give it a thought where our own actions are concerned. For instance, we don't think it considerate to talk with one or two people in a group about things which exclude the others. So with the children to see, I think it's a good plan to see that things of interest to them come up in the conversation, so that they have a chance to enter into it and express themselves about subjects that concern them. Sometimes it may be their own doing at school—sometimes it may be something you've seen or experienced that you know they would like to hear about.

Miss Jane to Be Wed Woodbury

BY THAL

Miss Jane McLean, 430 1/2 North Dearborn, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Woodbury. She is the youngest of five children

Miss Jane McLennan to Be Wed Today to Woodbury Swan Ober

BY THALIA

Miss Jane McLennan's marriage at 430 clock this afternoon at the Lake Presbyterian church to Woodbury Swan Ober of Baltimore, Md., is one of the most important nuptials of this season, which has seen quite a number of significant alliances.

The service will be followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, at 1000 N. Dearborn. A special train will convey the city guests to and from Lake Forest.

Miss McLennan's attendants will include her sister, Miss Margaret McLennan, as maid of honor, and as bridesmaids Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., Grace McLennan, whose marriage in November was a notable affair; Miss Eleanor Farwell, Miss Jane Warner, Miss Leslie Foster, Miss Frances Burdick of Pittsburgh, and Miss Helen Russell of Detroit. Douglas also is to be best man for her brother, and the ushers will be Charles M. Stewart III, Beverly Ober, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. H. Ober, Donald W. Griffin of Lake Forest, Pa., Richard W. Cuyler of Princeton, N. J., and Donald R. McLennan Jr. of Lake Forest.

Among the out of town guests here for Miss Katherine Anderson's marriage to Dr. Lester E. Frickel, Jr., at the taking place today, are the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. George Boyer of Toronto, Canada. Mrs. Boyer will be one of the matrons of honor. Another arrival is Mrs. R. J. Bell of Ontario. The service is to be read at St. Paul's Episcopal church, followed by a reception at the residence of Miss Anderson's parents, the Right Rev. and Mrs. Charles W. Anderson of 4612 Broad boulevard. Mrs. Anderson and Miss Nancy Anderson will also be attendants. John Frankenthal will be best man for the bride.

The American Opera house, which will hold its February board meeting and luncheon this noon at the Parkington. Plans are to be discussed for the program and tea to be given later in the month at the residence of Mrs. Charles S. Peterson at 77 East Elm street.

The Frederick H. Rawsons of 1550 State parkway are hoping to get away for the 15th or 20th of this month for about a month's sojourn on their yacht, the Gally. They have had the comely Mrs. Rawson and her daughter, Mrs. Charles K. Foster and Marvin Huphig Jr., who are to be with them for the first part of their cruise, will board the boat at Miami, Fla., where it is docked. A leisurely cruise up and down the Keys, with fishing for "everything from rums on up," according to Mr. Rawson, is on the program, with sailing fishing for the days that aren't too rough. Mrs. Rawson and Mrs. Foster are accomplished fishermen, and are expected to be so good that they "put it all over the top." The Rawsons, who are great sportsmen on their own account, will join the cruise for the first time. The Rawsons hope to have Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers as their guests later on.

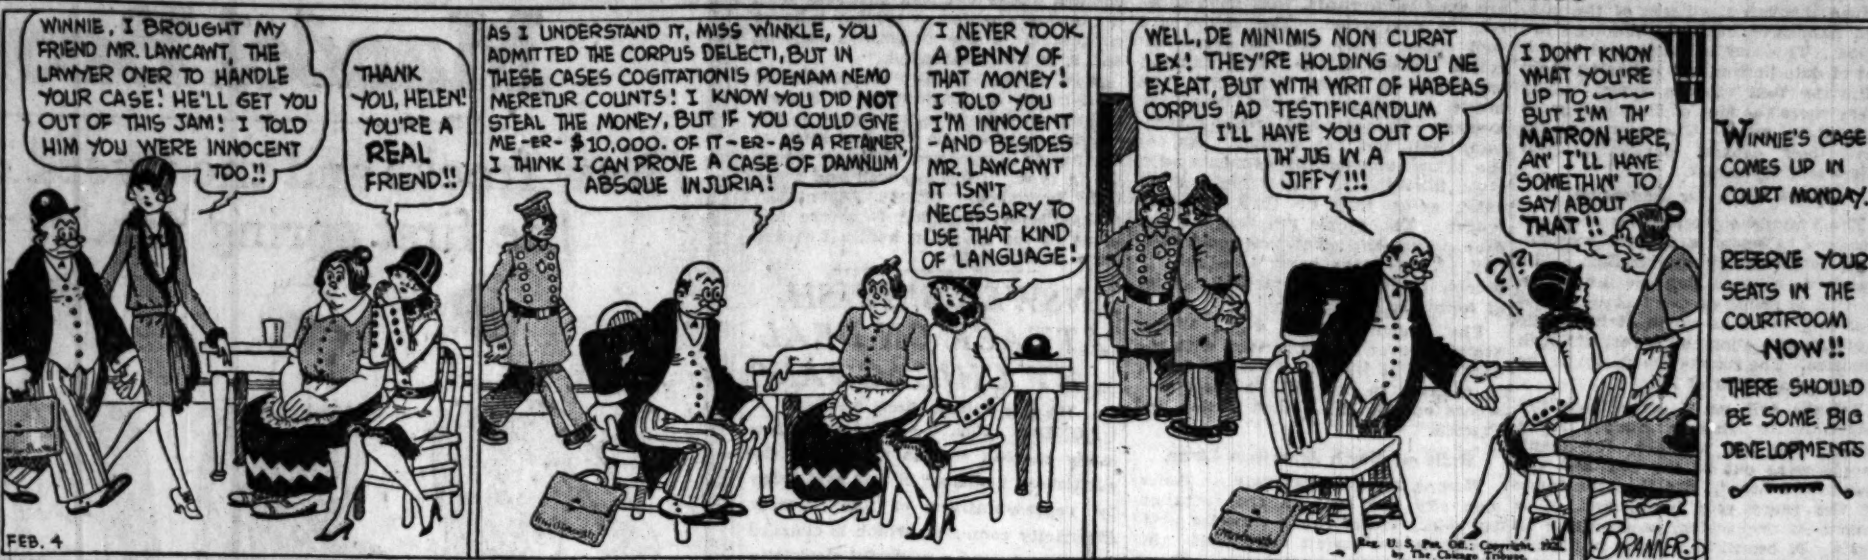

Mrs. Charles Dennison Burney of Carlton House terrace, London, is expected here by Feb. 16 to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. High of 1341 Lake Shore drive. Lieut. Com. Burney is busy in Washington, D. C., in the interest of commercial aviation, but may journey this way later on.

It depends upon just which of Chicago's citizens gets his hands on celebrity, whether he'll be a fashion-plate or not. Count Herman Keyserling, philosopher, is apparently going to have the best attention the town can offer him. Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Lamont are to put him up, and Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick is to give a luncheon for him on the date of his arrival, March 12. He is to address the Chicago Forum council at Orchestra hall that evening on "Marriage."

Mr. and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg (Louise Mitchell) have returned to Chicago from the west, and have taken quarters at the Ambassador hotel. They will leave for Europe on the 15th. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell Jr. are occupying the apartment at 1335 State parkway of the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell. Mrs. Waller Borden of 1020 Lake Shore drive and her daughter, Miss Borden, are departing today to sail for Europe. They will be met at the boat with a motor, in which they plan to tour through France and Italy. They will meet Miss Betty Borden, who is at school at Miss Mitchell's in Florence. They'll not be back until June 1.

Happiest Unions Still Found to Be Conventional Ones

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The one healthy contribution of the companionate marriage idea is the revolution of conventional thinking in its midst. In a land of easy marriage and divorce, it is refreshing to note the enthusiasm with which the cause of the conventional old marriage is embraced by persons one has come to believe of radical persuasion in most things.

In private conversations and in print among the most ardent supporters of the companionate marriage are people who "surprise" us by the turn of their minds where marriage and family and state are concerned. To the clergy one looks for the upholding of marriage and monogamy. It is the thinking by what on other subjects might be called the unconventional that supplies the wholesome note referred to.

However, it should not be surprising that the conventional view so many supporters, since personal observation of experimental marriage has put one lesson to indorse, which is that the happiest marriages are those that are lived in the most conventional style. "We've had the companionate marriage under other names, and the brief tenure of artificial attempts have borne out the theory that the conventional is the best safeguard against the divorce court."

Count Herman Keyserling, German philosopher, in a recent lecture said this marriage has roots in biology, nature, and certain moral ideas, that it is far more real than any theories about it can be, and that it was accepted as such until the present generation.

The children were greatly excited when their mother came home and informed them that the stork had visited their Aunt Mollie early that morning and left a little baby girl. "But, children," warned their mother, "you must not ask to be taken to see your new little niece for a day or two, at least."

"Sure, we can wait for a day or two," spoke up 4-year old Bobby, approvingly, "and that will give the stork a chance to feel at home."

ARGENTINA WINS YANKS WITH ITS BUSY CAPITAL

City's Modern Tone Shows Nation's Prosperity.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 3.—The average traveler from the United States likes Buenos Aires. The city and its people attract him. His contacts seldom extend beyond the capital, but when they do he likes and appreciates "the camp," the farming regions, where the wealth of the Argentine is produced.

Buenos Aires enjoys a happy combination of business prosperity and knowledge of how to live. Its citizens are hard working, and at the same time get a great deal out of life. They have planned a great city on the banks of the Rio de la Plata, a city which delights the eye. Wide parks are everywhere. Between the docks and the city are long stretches of green. Not many years ago passengers from the big liners were brought ashore in launches until the water became too shallow; then by high wheeled carts. Today a deep channel has been dug through the river silt into an artificial turning basin and passenger dock. From it have been constructed a series of smaller basins, where the ships lie to discharge or take on cargo.

Praised by James Bryce.

Sir James Bryce, in his "South America: Observations and Impressions" remarks: "Not Glasgow when she deepened her river to admit the largest ships, nor Manchester when she made her ship canal, hardly even Chicago when she planned a new park and lagoons in the lake that washes her feet, showed greater enterprise and bolder conceptions than did the men of Buenos Aires when on this exposed and shallow coast they made alongside their city a great ocean harbor. They are a type of our time. In their equal devotion to business and pleasure."

The public buildings, the opera house, the jockey club, are handsome structures. One comes upon beautiful little homes at unexpected corners of parks. The great monuments to national heroes are well done. The new state house is modeled along the lines of our own capitol. The old streets of the city, planned 50 years ago, are much too narrow for modern conditions. Buenos Aires is facing the problem of motor transport as courageously as it did that of the port. Wide avenues are being driven through the heart of the city, and handsome business buildings are rising. This city is getting rid of old, out of date houses and replacing them with the best modern types. And everywhere the idea of trees and grass is kept in mind. The new avenues have their central parkways, even where land is dear.

Spend Much for Education.

The Argentine people themselves are pleasant to know, attractive companions, intellectually stimulating. The standards of education are high. Argentina is proud of the fact that it is spending twice as much of its public funds on education as the rest of South America. The results are shown in the general standards of life.

Friends tell me I have been unfortunate in visiting Buenos Aires during the hot weather, for many people were out of the city and the general standards of life. But the attendance at the races was large, and of a smartness one seldom sees outside of Paris. Of beautiful women, beautifully groomed, there were many.

I had heard much about the immoral night life of Buenos Aires. An American preacher published a book which created a lot of amusement here. He called it "To Hell and Back: A Trip to Buenos Aires." Some of my Argentine friends want to meet that man. "He must have a lot of addresses we haven't," they say. Nothing could be more false than such a description of the capital of Argentina. Far from being a wild city it is almost puritanic. There are good restaurants, with good cabarets in connection. The shows are well done. They are far from immoral. There is the usual dancing one finds in every large city; the music is perhaps better than the average. One gets and drinks exceedingly well, but not cheaply. As for the things one usually connects with civic immorality, they simply don't exist, or if they do they are well hidden. The people are fond of outdoor sports—the races, polo, golf, football. This latter sport bids fair to become their national pastime. A lot of tennis is played.

The Argentine lives well. Wages are good, even in comparison with the high cost of living. Probably better in relation to cost of life than anywhere outside the United States and Canada.

Built on North American Lines. Buenos Aires is distinctly an American city, laid out on the rectangular plan. We of North America pride ourselves on having introduced this method of town construction. It existed here before our first towns were built. Business life is confined to a distinct quarter of the city; beyond, apartment buildings, then the wealthier residential section, grouped in the vicinity of Palermo park, then the suburbs.

Houses and gardens, suburban life which one seldom encounters in Europe, are an important feature of Buenos Aires. The homes range from the palatial chateaus of the wealthy to the modest bungalow of the wage earner. Good train and car service connect these outlying districts with the business center. A subway relieves congestion in the downtown section, and it is being extended.

Most of the homes in the residential section are an adaptation of French eighteenth century architecture to the requirements of the climate; some of the newer houses are distinctly Spanish in type. They are well and tastefully furnished. "Early Argentina" is handsome, dignified furniture and many of the pieces in homes I visited were of this genre.

ANSWER BRITISH ATTACK ON DEAL BY CHICAGOANS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Feb. 3.—There is absolutely nothing to announce until the parliament hearing," it was said today by representatives of the Wessex Electricity company, which is charged with introducing a powerful electricity monopoly controlled by Chicago capitalists. "The people who are fighting us have no interests at stake except legitimate competition and the question of where the capital comes from is nobody's business." The new firm has opened offices in the West End. The London office of Samuel Insull denies any knowledge of the project.

$40,000 Crowd Sees Dull Bout.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(Chicago Tribune Staff Writer.)
New York, Feb. 3.—Fighting a young fellow only half his age, if that, old Iron Michael Lomski made a rough young man from Aberdeen, Wash., look down at the Garden this evening, and but for some mutual bloodshed due to minor gashes the customers would have been very severely bored.
Lomski took the decision, old Iron Michael took a few blows today, and the result was a dull bout.

From a sentimental point of view, it was quite a show, with an elderly, chubby man using the skill of twenty years in the ring to minimize or completely thwart the rush of the impudent green of the younger and taller would be in pouting phrases.
Probably he was telling Lomski he expected to get anywhere in the fight business.

Old Mike was not by means certain that he could continue to hold his side. In the eighth round Lomski got into a tangle with him and suddenly, wrenching his right arm loose, went to clutch the old man's head.
Mike pulled in his neck and tried to throw his right shoulder into the clutching continued and for a moment it looked as though Lomski had started his teetering. But Lomski, the referee, stepped in just then and spread them out and the bout was past.

Fight Becomes Gory.
They both took divots in the fourth
with a glancing swing and wound it up, bringing the blood in a flood. The next flurry Lomski grazed Mike with a right and split the side in the middle of his forehead.
He broke away Mike looked as though some one had spanked him in the face with a bruised dipped in red and he intended to stop it. But Mike indicated that he was steady enough and went back to his jabbing and grabbing. Coming out of this flurry, Lomski showed up with his right cheek bone laid open and a few drops of blood oozed out of his right eye.

This was the opening bout of another elimination tournament to find opponents for Tommy Loughran, the light heavyweight champion, who indicates that he wants to fight and, instead, is believed to be out of his mind.
Loughran weighed 173 and Lomski 170.
In the semi-final Maxie Rosenbloom and Phil Kaplan went eight rounds and a fight without inflicing any damage and Rosenbloom won the decision. They weighed 159 pounds each. This fight was not much good either and on the whole it was a dull evening for the customers.

Magee, aggressive and slugging out-

John Heydler,

National league,

Magee played his beginning a major league career that did not terminate until 1918. He led

Maroon Swim Team Defeats Indiana, 36-33

University of Chicago swimmers defeated Indiana University, 36 to 33, in a dual Big Ten conference meet in the Bartlett gym pool last night.
The Maroons were extended to the limit to beat the Indiana splashes.
Chicago won six first places out of the eight events held, but the Hoosiers kept piling up points with second and third places.
Rittenhouse of the Maroons won first place in the 100 yards back stroke and 100 yards free style events.
His performance was the magnificent order that paused for no mechanical analysis, at least not by the Big Moose himself. In twenty years, Walsh has given some attention to the teaching of his art, inspired perhaps by the hope that his two sons, now students at Notre Dame, some day may become as good as he was.

U. S. RACQUETS TEAM DEFENDS TITLE TODAY

titleholders, Clarence C. Pell and Stanley G. Mortimer of New York, will

Simpson and C. N. Bruce in the finals of the national racquet championship tomorrow.
Pell and Mortimer defeated the Anglo-Canadian pair, P. W. Kemp-Welch of England and A. J. Cassell of Montreal, in the semi-finals today, 15-11, 15-8, 15-4.
Simpson and Bruce beat the New Yorkers, C. J. Coulter and Hewitt
Morgan, 11-15, 15-16, 15-15, 15-8,

SOX SIGN WALSH TO DEVELOP NEW PITCHING TALENT

Four College Stars Added to Hurling Corps.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
No matter how lowly in life the White Sox have been in past seasons, there rarely has been a year when the pitching staff was not headed by one of the best pitchers in captivity.
Red Lyons, recently with Tommy Thomas as runner-up, has carried on the preceded for several years, succeeding the still present, Red Pa-ber as one of the ranking three re-pitchers of the American league.
Consistent of Red's regime was shared by Eddie Cicotte, and so on back for years and years, not forgetting, of course, the superb days of Ed Walsh.
Therefore, when the Sox nabbed talk about developing young pitchers it isn't at all difficult to keep a straight face, as it is, for instance, when there's talk of developing 400 sluggers.

Manager Ray Schalk is thrilled at the prospect of teaching a flock of young persons how to throw baseballs past batters. Within the last week four college pitchers have augmented the array of embryo talent gathered earlier in the winter. And there's nothing in the books that could cause a scuffer to say the experienced Crickler was wasting his time.

Spanish Hurler Signed.
The latest acquisition to stir the enthusiasm of Manager Schalk is one Elmer Bray, late of the University of Washington. Mr. Bray is 21 years old, weighs 185, and is one inch over six feet. He uses his right hand in his work.
Eulogio "Speed" Luque, who is not a Cuban as an Espanol, 'tis said, also is stirring the imagination of the Crickler. Eulogio leans to the Uzu-du physique rather than that of his other landmen, the several Jal alai players hereabouts.
Miller Beasley, third baseman, formerly of Texas university and the United States Naval academy, yesterday was added to the roster of those who will go south with the club.

JENNINGS IS BURIED AMONG HILLS HE LOVED

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Hughie
Jennings, for nearly forty years a colored figure in baseball, was borne to his last resting place today in the pleekness of the snow covered Pocono mountains, in the country which he had learned to love so well during the last two years of his life.
At St. Peter's cathedral solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by the Rev. C. A. McHugh, pastor of the Cary-on-the-Mount Roman Catholic church at Mount Pocono.
The death of Moore, where he was born and where he got his start on the and lots, sent its citizens to the services, and Leighton, the little town where Jennings first played semi-professional ball in 1890, had its delegation on hand.

Michigan Trains Its Guns on Maroon Five Tonight

Quietude along the Big Ten battle front, where for the last two weeks a virtual armistice has been in effect, will be broken tonight. Two minor shots will be fired to announce the end of the mid-year lull and next week the battle again will rage at its fullest.
Tonight's games, in which Michigan comes to Chicago and Ohio State travels to Minnesota, will have little bearing on the championship, unless the Wolverines seemed unable to hit their stride at the start of the season and lost to Wisconsin and Northwestern;
but in the last two games have exhibited the power which carried them to the title last year.

Michigan coaches have utilized Harrigan's driving power for scoring purposes and, together with Coffey, he forms the nucleus of the new system of attack employed by the Wolverines. McCoy, the third veteran of the outfit, will pair with Harrigan at
end, with Harrigan at center and Rose at forward with Oosterbaan.

Chicago Improves Offense.
Coach Nels Norrgren of Chicago, having devoted the first half of the season to perfecting his defense, has been said to have switched instructional tactics this week and to have developed a new offensive, using his tailer men, Gist and Changnon, in scoring formations instead of the divisive Zimmerman and Kaplan.
Chicago, like Michigan, has won its last two games. By winning, the Maroons can grab fifth place from the Wolverines and Minnesota play at Iowa. A victory for Michigan will place it in a tie for fourth with Indiana.
Minnesota, which will open its new season, will have its new home, which has seats for 14,000, has drawn its cellar-sharer, Ohio State, for the festive offering. Although each team has been defeated three out of four starts, the game should prove interesting. Minnesota, which clings tenaciously to its short shot system, should meet with better success against the weak guarding Buckeyes. The Gophers, inspired by the fighting Stark, will form danger.

Amateur Ski Riders Demand Cash Prizes

Red Wing, Minn., Feb. 3.—(AP)— Honoring an ultimatum from thirty riding riders, the National Ski association, meeting here today prelin-inary to the national ski tournament,
voted to ask the Amateur Athletic
A wire to this effect was dispatched to the A. A. U. with the request that a reply be given today.
Tiring of risking their limbs to entertain ski fans for silverware, crockery, and other such gifts permissible under the existing rules, the riders demanded that they be permitted to accept cash prizes.
The ultimatum was backed with the threat that if the recommendation were rejected the riders would secede from the national group and set up an organization of their own.
While the riders and officers of twenty-four widely scattered clubs discussed professionalism and other persistent subjects indoors, balmy weather all but ruined skiing conditions outdoors.
Charlton Hill, where the national event will be held Sunday, was dripping wet as a hot February sun combined with a heavy snow and ice into a slush. Tournament officials insisted that the riders be given today prelin-
inary to the national ski tournament,
voted to ask the Amateur Athletic
union if sanctioning of professionalism
within the organization would cost the

11 Year Old Lad 'Floors' Tunney; Runs from Ring

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3.—Elliott Thompson, 11, son of a Louisville, Ky., newspaperman, tonight is one of the happiest juveniles in the world and should be the envy of young America.
Elliott was picked out of a crowd of pop eyed youngsters today by Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, to put on the gloves for a brief movie bout before the champion started his daily workout at the Roney Plaza casino.
The youngster got the kick of his young life when Tunney permitted him to belt him on his million dollar jaw with a right hook and the champion feigned momentary progress.
"Gowan, kid, now you got him," urged one of the cameramen as Gene went down on one knee. "Throw another one in there and you'll be heavyweight champion of the world."
Young Thompson wound up Jack Bentley getting set to throw over a third strike. Gene rolled his head to one side and the blow went wild and caught the highly excited youngster on the kneecap on the recoil.
Tunney got up and crouched low.
The boy rushed in with eyes closed and swinging both mitts blindly while the crowd went into hysterics.
Elliott was a brave boy indeed until Gene "recovered." Then the champion made a lot of ugly faces and worked his arms in feinting fashion until the boy became frightened and ran out of the ring, gloves and all.

PRINCETON GETS ARMY DATE ON NAVY GRID CARD

Middies Announce Three Year Contract.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Hope for an Army-Navy game this year was thrown definitely into the discard tonight with the announcement by Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, superintendent of the naval academy, that the game at Philadelphia this year will be played on the home floors of Illinois and Michigan.

Princeton has accepted the invitation of the Navy to play the game at Philadelphia next fall, Admiral Nulton's statement said, and in addition the two institutions have entered into a three year contract.
The game at Philadelphia this year has definitely eliminated Army from Navy's schedule, but in 1929 and 1930 the contract calls for games to be played late in October.
Two Games at Princeton.
The contract with Princeton also states, Admiral Nulton said, that the games in 1929 and 1930 will be played at Princeton, which strengthened the belief that Navy did not wish to discontinue indefinitely the annual football game with the Army.
Admiral Nulton's statement did not settle the fact that the game will not necessarily be played at Franklin field, although it was believed that as that field had been selected for the proposed Army-Navy tussle, it probably would be the site for the game between Navy and Princeton.

of the Heights Casino invitation tennis tournament today by defeating Mrs.
Lillian Schanman Hester of New York in the semi-finals in straight sets, 6-4, won the right to face Mrs. Mallory in the finals by eliminating Miss Alice

The doubles final, an all-New York

COLLEGE ROUND TABLE.
DEAR HARVEY: The author of the article in this TRIBUNE which stated that Notre Dame and Pittsburgh probably would play for the national basketball championship must be a Notre Dame alumnus, with which Chicago papers seem to be liberally supplied. I wish you would tell him about Purdue, Harvey, and then when you have told him that, also tell him that the "classic" HAS been played. Purdue played Indiana
Jan. 24 and Purdue won, 28 to 25.
D. L. B.

"Paul L." in claiming the middle west championship, failed to mention its only defeat this season, by Bradley, I have seen Loyola in action. It is a great five, but does not compare with the Peoria outfit.
The Techmen from the west bluffs of the Illinois river have one of the classiest sides in the "Little 16," but we do not claim they are the best in the middle west. It is one of the greatest Bradley ever had and capable of giving any Big Ten squad plenty of action. Bradley has lost two of seven games played. Both games were lost by close scores on the home floors of Illinois and Michigan.

The Trib sport page is authority for the statement that "a well oiled Purdue team beat Indiana." We wonder what our bunch would do if they'd been
1928 Big Ten Champs.

Dear Harvey, English coaching days in Chicago sounds like a joke, and yet such a thing actually happened during the 1923 World's fair. A group of young Englishmen conceived the idea they would make a lot of money by driving people from downtown to the fair grounds, so they brought over a number of coaches, trained horses, uniformed drivers, and the other components for genuine English coaching, and operated from offices in the Congress hotel—then Auditorium Annex.

They were young men of high degree, and were much admired by the matrons of the city; they came in handy as judges of horse show pulls off at Tattersall's, and were quite some boys socially until the losses entailed in the coaching business pulled them down.
It was a long drop from life in the downtown hotels to cheap boarding houses on 14th street, but a lot of fellows took it along with these English sports.

length and a half from Jock, owned by Edward B. McLean of Washington.
The long shot, Sea Rocket, in the huge field of sixteen wound up in third place.

Justice F. made good for the people in New Orleans who have learned to admire him. He made good for some 100 Chicagoans who came here with Mayor William Hale Thompson and who backed him. He was the favorite at odds of about 7 to 5, paying $4.38 in the two dollar mutuels. His time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:46.45.

For only the first brief half mile did Justice F. give his many admirers much concern. Jockey A. Pascuma, after a seven minutes' delay at the post caused by War Eagle and Laddie, started away fast. Justice F. was strutted out the first turn by Oh Susanna and Laddie.

He didn't let the leaders get far away from him, however, and he was straightened out for the run down the back stretch than Jockey Pas-cuma gave him his head and he went speeding past Laddie, Sea Rocket, after Oh Susanna and at the half mile post Justice F.'s nose was showing in front.

From there Justice F. was always in front. Jock away first but fourth in the first turn, also moved up going down the back stretch. At the end of six furlongs he was just ahead of Oh Susanna and Laddie. In the mid-stretch, it looked like he might do it.
Justice F.'s backers, all except old Bill Daniel, almost forgot to keep their heads down and got his head at Justice F.'s flank.
Justice F. Pulled Away.
Then Pascuma drew his whip. He gave Justice F. two hard cracks. The English colt responded. He had a lambent burst of speed to give to this contest, and once more he pulled away from Jock. He was going away for
front as they went flying past the finish line.

Oh Susanna, after giving way to Justice F. at the half and Jock at the six furlong post, was floundering and staggering in the stretch. She had nothing left to shake off Sea Rocket's late challenge and lost third money by from Jock. He was going away for the rest of the way home and was running easily a length and a half in front as they went flying past the finish line.

Thompson Presents Trophy.
Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago climbed into the judges' box stand soon after the official numbers went up in the handicap and presented the $2,500 gold cup and check for $4,975 to Omer Daniel as Justice
F.'s share of the purse.
The huge garland of roses tossed across Justice F.'s shoulders when he crossed the finish line was unadorned was later carried into the infield by Jockey Pascuma, where he placed it on the grave of Black Gold, the derby winner buried there a few weeks ago when he broke a leg in a race here.
Justice F.'s victory today makes him, as Jock came up to the finish of the $100,000 Coughlin handicap to be run at St. Johns on March 18.

Jai Alai Rally Gives Vicente, Marcelino Win

Rafael, the Cuban master of the Spanish game of jai alai, and his partner, Adolfo, seemed well on the high road to victory in the feature doubles event at the Rainbo fronton last night, but were unable to stand prosperity. Starting off with a burst of speed, they quickly ran up an advantage of 7 to 3 over Vicente and Marcelino, only to slow and watch their long lead trickle away until the count was deadlocked at 9 to 9 and again at 11 to 11. Then Vicente and Marcelino chimed in with a run of three points to insure victory.

Adolfo and Barrutia furnished the major thrill of the evening in the second doubles game when they staged a run of five to win after two other teams were within a point of victory.

TRIANGLE AUTOMOBILE COMPANY
Chicago

January 18, 1928.

The Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Square, Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

At the conclusion of the most successful year in our history, from the standpoint of used car sales, we believe a word of appreciation is coming to The Chicago Tribune for its part in our success.

As the largest Authorized Lincoln Dealers, we take in many fine cars of our own and other makes, some of them having a resale value as high as $3,500.00 or $4,000.00. To dispose of these, we must naturally reach a class of people whose incomes are large—people ordinarily referred to as the quality class.

During 1927 we spent fully seventy-five per cent of our used car advertising appropriation in the Classified columns of The Chicago Tribune and our copy has never failed to get the desired result. Used cars have ceased to be a problem here. We turn them over as rapidly as we can recondition them.

Believing in giving credit where credit is due, we pass this information along for you to use as you see fit.

Cordially yours,

Donald Barry
Manager, Used Car Division.

REO

Chicago, Illinois

January 18, 1928.

The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

We think that it will be of interest to you to know that the Used Car Department of the Chicago Branch of the Reo Motor Car Company has enjoyed the most successful year in its history.

We directly attribute a large part of this success to the consistent placing of our used car advertising in The Chicago Tribune.

We were faced in 1927 with the big problem of quickly moving the many used cars taken in trade on our popular Flying Cloud and Wolverine models. But by the consistent use of the Classified Automobile Column of The Chicago Tribune we were able not only to move this large volume of high grade used cars, but to move them quickly and at a very satisfactory price.

As we believe The Chicago Tribune to be the best medium for advertising used cars in Chicago, we will continue as in the past to place the largest part of our copy in your paper.

Very truly yours,

REO CHICAGO BRANCH

G. H. Gray
Assistant Manager.

We are always glad at every opportunity to praise the advertising power of The Chicago Tribune.

Our used car stocks are always moving and a steady stream of buyers visits our place of business daily.

We attribute a great portion of this to The Chicago Tribune Automobile Want Ads. We are consistent advertisers in The Chicago Tribune because it produces the results we are after, not once in a while but every day.

Yours very truly,

ON THIS page nine successful used car dealers disclose the method through which they win sales in Chicago.

It is significant that these men,

each offering a different type and price of car, depend almost wholly on one market and the medium

that covers it . . . The Chicago

Tribune Want Ad Section . . . for their sales. Significant because it shows clearly the reason behind

The Tribune's overwhelming

supremacy in used car advertising.

Like thousands of individuals these men have learned that no other method is so productive, so unfailingly successful.

Whether you are an individual seeking an easy way to sell a single car profitably, or a dealer faced with the problem of moving large numbers quickly, by concentrating in The Tribune market

CADILLAC

January 13, 1928.

Mr. A. R. Koehler,
Classified Manager,
Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Koehler:

During the year 1927 the Chicago Branch of the Cadillac Motor Car Company increased its used car volume 43%. Our principal source of used car prospects was the classified columns of the daily papers. The Chicago Tribune has always carried the major share of our classified copy, and for the past year, during which all our used car volume records were broken, The Chicago Tribune carried more than four-fifths of our used car copy.

While there is much controversy regarding which paper in Chicago is second in used car classified results, we believe there is practically no argument over the fact that The Chicago Tribune stands first.

Yours very truly,

R. L. Duffany
General Manager.

The Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.
Gentlemen:

For many years we have been consistent users of The Tribune classified advertising. We deal almost exclusively in high-grade used cars, and have found The Tribune to be far and away the best medium for the sale of this class of used car.

Without any difficulty we can directly trace the sale of a number of cars to The Chicago Tribune. During the year we used 21,124 lines.

Not only do I consider The Tribune as the outstanding newspaper for the advertising of high-grade used cars in Chicago, but from my observation, it stands alone in America today in this field.

During the year 1928, we will continue to take advantage of the opportunity offered us to sell high-grade used cars at minimum cost through your medium.

Very truly yours,

STUTZ CHICAGO FACTORY BRANCH, INC.

W. B. Stutz
President.

Gentlemen:

On October 25th Mr. Albrow took charge of our used car department and at his suggestion we signed a contract with your company and increased our newspaper advertising program.

Previous to October 25th we had used in three months' time some three hundred lines in your classified section with fair results. From October 26th to January 1st we increased this amount to 1,662 lines and increased our sales some 300%.

Upon these conclusive facts we are basing our future program, allotting The Tribune a 4% ratio of our classified advertising budget.

Thanking you for your sincere co-operation, Respectfully yours,

GEO. W. DURST CHEVROLET CO.

Gentlemen:

We have been consistent users of classified advertising space in The Tribune ever since we have been in business.

The Tribune has been by far the best business getter. It is the highest priced and the cheapest. It gets us immediate action in the movement of a large volume of used cars that it is necessary for us to move quickly in order to keep our stations cleared of stock.

We will continue to use it on even a much more elaborate scale in the future than in the past.

The Chicago Tribune,
Tribune Square,

Gentlemen:

During the twenty-five years that we have been in business, we have used and experimented with practically every type of used car promotion and advertising. It is significant that at the end of this period we are using your classified section exclusively!

The reasons are obvious. Actual tests have showed us that no other medium can give us such great results so economically.

Needless to say we plan to continue an exclusive use of The Tribune during 1928, for in our opinion it stands alone in America today, supreme in the field of used car advertising.

(Chicago Tribune Service.)

New York, Feb. 3.—A wave of selling hit the stock market late today after it had opened weak and ended through a brisk recovery around noon, and the close found a long list of declines running from 3 to 5 points. About thirty minutes before the close, stocks were thrown on the market in large blocks. Supporting orders were not adequate that the general list crumbled at the close, traders were frantically competing with each other to have their selling orders executed.

The overnight raising of the New York federal reserve bank discount rate was the sole influence on the market. It was not easy to determine just how far speculative sentiment had been changed by the reserve bank's action, for a good part of the day's selling evidently came from professional operators for the decline. Nevertheless, all classes of traders there was considerable uneasiness over the credit situation. There was, however, no reflection of this in the call money rate, which held at 1/4 per cent all day.

Rails Unsettled Market.

There was a brief flurry of selling when the market opened down from one to three points, but by noon the leaders had mostly recovered their losses. However, the general list turned irregular again in the afternoon, due to heavy selling of various rails. Sharp breaks took place in Seaboard, St. Louis and Southwest, and Erie common, and caused sympathetic declines in New York Central, Atlantic Coast, Canadian Pacific, and others. The carrier group, with the rails under pressure, industrials turned downward and the wave of selling got under way.

Most of the market leaders were in the van of the swift decline. United States Steel advanced fractionally in the morning, only to fall 1/2 in the last half hour. General Motors rose 2 points, declined 1/2 and recovered 3/4. Radio corporation moved up 3/4, declined 1/4, and recovered 1/2. Such stocks as Freeport, Texas, Groves, Cananea, Copper, and Hudson Motors declined in less orderly fashion, Freeport losing 3/4 points on the day, Hudson 1/4, and Groves Cananea 1/2.

New Haven Gains a Fraction.

New Haven was a feature of the rail group. Large blocks of stock were taken above 67, which was around the highest level since 1916. The stock closed at 66 1/2, up fractionally. Pittsburgh and West Virginia also closed with a fractional gain.

Other stocks to finish the day with plus values included Brooklyn Union Gas, up 3 points; Olden preferred, up 1/2; Detroit Edison, up 1/4; Vanadium, up 1/2; and United Drug 1/4.

Montana Paid Considerable Setback.

TOPICS OF FINANCE, TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car company, reports that shipments were more than double those of January, 1927, with orders from dealers giving definite promise of good business for the first quarter. F. C. Chaudron, president of the Chandler-Cleveland Motor Car company, reported January shipments 42 per cent ahead of January, 1927.

Earnings of Amalgamated Leather company for 1927 are expected to be smaller than the year before, when net was $80,493, or $10.41 a share on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred, on which no dividends have been paid since October, 1920. The street hears it is possible the company may reorganize its capital structure by January 1, 1928, eliminating arrears on the preferred.

Price of wire rods has been advanced $2 a ton to $44 at Pittsburgh. Specifications for deliveries of semi-finished steel increased sharply during the latter part of January. Prices of fender steel have been advanced $2 a ton, making heavy gauge material 4.60 and light gauge 4.40 lb. Cold finished bars are up 12 a ton, bringing the new base quotation to 2.80, Pittsburgh and Chicago, and 2.80, Cleveland.

The Golden Gate Ferry company of San Francisco filed notice of an increase of capital stock from $5,000,000 to $5,500,000. The increase is represented by 100,000 shares of common stock valued at $5 a share.
